Setting Quiet as Democrats Look Toward 4 Days of Near-Harmony

By R. W. APPLE Jr. On the eve of a Democratic National Convention that he has shaped in his own image, Jimmy Carter said vesterday that he planned no surprises and would choose his running mere from a group of seven nationally prominent prospects.

All the possibilities on the former Georgia Governor's final list have been subject of speculetion for weeks, and all, reflecting Mr. Carter's desire to balance his outsider's image with someone from Washington, are members of Congress.

The 5t-year-old Southerner met yesterday with Representative Peter W. Rodino Jr. of New Jersey, one of the heroes of Watergete, end he will meet today with Senators Adlei E. Stevenson 3d of Illinois and Frank Church of Idaho.

He met eerlier with Senalors Walter F. Mondale of Minnesota and John Glenn of Ohio, whom most major politicians consider the front-ruoners, as well as with Senators Edmund 5, Muskie of Maine and Henry M. Jeckson of Washington.

Beirut's People Succumb at Last to City's Daily Agony

BEIRUT, Lehanon, July 11 -More than ever before, Beirut has the look of a dying city.

For 15 months its citizens endured artillery bombardments, kidnappings and random murder with amazing resilience. Now they find themselves virtually defeated hy the lack of water, electricity, fuel medicine and, in some cases, bread.

Many have given up and left. For the first time the little people and the poor are joining the exodus, which used to be confined to the rich with coonections abroad.

In Basta, a solidly Moslem lower-middle-class district, a young shop owner estimated yesterday that only a third of the neighborhood families

Those who leave, a oumber of interviews showed, are driven out by a mixture of fear and bopelessness. Some fear that west Beirut will become the battlefield for a desperate last-ditch war fought by the Palestinians against the Syrian Army. Misery of Daily Life Others cite the growing misery of daily life, especially the lack of water and gasolioe.

In Bourgi Abu Haidar, one of the most populous quarters, a grocer, his shelves empty except for a few packages of spaghetti and some soap, explained that he used to rent a truck for $15 to buy merchandise. Today a truck costs $100 a day, if he cao find one.

"Nooe of my customers could afford the prices I would have to charge," he said. 'T'm goiog to my village in the south and watch what

The Palestinian command acted after Syrian artillery damaged the Zahrani oil refinery near Saida from which the capital got its fuel.

The city stoppe deetting water four weeks ago when most of its electric power lines were cut through shelling, bringing to a halt the pumps that had forced the water through the mains.

Now there are some 40 places in the capital where people can get water for a few hours daily. These are the sites of artesian wells wbere generators have been installed to bring the water to ground level. The price of plastic bottles and buckets used to carry the water has tripled. ## A Reporter's Notebook: The Touch of Royalty

By LINDA CHARLTON

BOSTON, July 11—Of the mass of unresolved trivial questions raised during The Visit, the most controversial was whether or not Queen Elizabeth II, on viewing the Liberty Bell, had succumbed to the impulse that seizes most ordinary tourists and reached out a (white-gloved) finger to touch it. It was a dispute that sim-mered and rankled all day long in Philadelphia, some photographs seeming to show her touching the bell, others not. Some reporters insisted that they had seen the tip of her glove turn up slightly as finger met bell. Still others said this simply was not true. The Queen's press secretary, Ronald Allison, said, on being appealed to, that he just didn't know; besides, he couldn't understand why everyone cared. On heing told that every tourist tries to touch the hell, he replied, "the Queen is not an ordi-nary tourist," in a tone that might or might not have indi-cated a sense of humor.

Mr. Allison is known as Pon, a coincidence that prompted some American reporters to wonder if naming a son Ronald is perhaps a will end up as a high-level with wavy, graying blond hir. 44 years old and a forher British Broadcasting roughout the trip, he wore is merican-flag tie-except, of course, when he was

The British Embassy in Washington provided the traveling British correspondents with special luggage tags, excellent in almost every respect. They were heavy huff-colored paper with plenty of room for name and address. But the tags seemed to indicate a zeal for economy, no matter what economy, no matter what else: They read, "On His Britannic Majesty's Service." For all her years of experience in emerging from the back seats of limousines, mostly Rolls-Royces, Queen seemed to American eyes to have as much trouble as anyone else on occasion. And no one, not even President Ford, ever made a move to help her. A British official explained that she doesn't want any help and does not like people touching her. Ever since 1856, the news media have depended on Western Union.

When James Buchanan (left) got the nod, Western Union answered the call and whisked away the reporter's copy for tapping out on a Morse key. At this year's Democratic Convention, Western Union is still answering the call. With modern, high-speed communications equipment, our press centers are capable of handling more than a million words a day.

Many of the 3,600 print journalists are utilizing our battery of Telex and TWX™ teletypewriters at the press centers to keep the world informed on a minute-by-minute basis. Twenty-four hours a day.

For the first time, our Westar satellites serve the media at a political convention.

At the 1976 conventions, broadcast journalists are spreading the word via our Westar® satellite system.

From the convention floor, broadcast signals are transmitted to Western Union's television operation center near Central Park. From there, these signals go to our earth station at Glenwood, New Jersey. At Glenwood, antennas beam the signals to Westar, 22,300 miles out in space, for transmission across the country.

Our Westar satellites are the most publicized part of our $1.5 billion modernization program. The tip of the iceberg, they represent less than 10 percent of our investment over the past decade.

Five years ago, we purchased the TWX teletypewriter network from AT&T and then interconnected it with our Telex network. Through the combined Telex and TWX networks, subscribers can access nearly 600,000 terminals worldwide.

To increase speed and reliability, we constructed an enormous message routing computer in Middletown, Virginia. Then we built one of the world's largest telephone answering systems. Accepting toll-free calls 24 hours a day, seven days a week, our telephone bureaus have made it a lot easier and faster to reach Western Union.

We also made investments in many new services. One of these is Mailgram® service, developed jointly with the U.S. Postal Service. Western Union transmits your Mailgram message electronically to a Post Office near your addressee for delivery with the next business day's mail.

Mailgram service has grown so rapidly that today, for every domestic Telegram transmitted, there are three Mailgram messages sent.

Buying advertising media is always a big problem.

À bigger problem, however, is buying advertising media for an advertiser who is short on money, short on time, and whose entire future hinges on getting results.

Into the latter category fall political candidates in a fast-closing campaign.

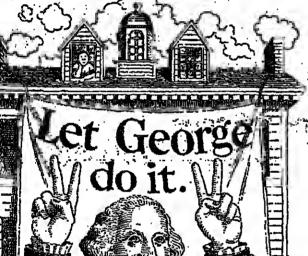

We at Magazine Networks think it's a problem large enough to warrant lengthy discussion.

Is there a place for advertising in politics?

The fact of the matter is that a lot of people today are seriously beginning to wonder.

We take issue with all of them.

When political advertising is needlessly negative, unfairly attacks, sensationalizes an issue, engages in mere "press agentry" or otherwise strays from the very thin tightwire of good taste, we agree-it's very bad.

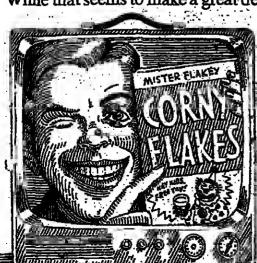

However, when political advertising is clear, explanatory, informative, issueoriented and otherwise substantial, we believe it's not only very good, but also very

The best way yet devised to help a voter. make the considered, rational choice his or her vote ought to be.

Can the great issues of our time be covered in 30 seconds?

The conventional way of running a political campaign is to include a great deal of television in the advertising media buy. While that seems to make a great deal of sense in a fast-closing campaign, it's actually quite questionable.

What's more than enough to cover a box of corn flakes is less than enough to cover a foreign policy:

Television is powerful, but in 30 and 60 second lengths, is fleeting and often superficial or emotional.

Some experts strongly subscribe to the opinion that 30 and 60 second political commercials are, as one of them says. "incapable of doing justice. (but) capable of doing mischief."

Perhaps even more damaging to candidates than the fact that political commercials often mislead, is the fact that they often completely miss.

At an average cost of over $50,000 a minute, prime time commercials reach an audience of only 14 percent of the people old enough to vote.

An audience, by the way, that often tunes out during commercial breaks and remains largely unaffected by what political spots say even if they do watch.

Five minute commercials? Half-hour commercials? There's no time on the tube.

Voters say they'd like to see -longer political commercials on television. It's unlikely they will. The president of a TV network was recently quoted by The You can buy all the time you want between "Good Night, Night Owls" and "Good Morning, Early Birds." New York Times as saying, "The five minute period is not readily available, because it just doesn't exist spot media. in the schedule. It usually has to be carved out of a completed program. A half-hour purchase means pre-empting a scheduled entertainment show." And for each time slot found for one candidate, networks and stations are legally bound to find another for each opposing candidate.

As the network president suggested, maybe 1980.

But unfortunately, not this year. Ouite frankly, candidates, you've forgotten a sizeable constituency.

Earlier this campaign year, Media Decisions magazine. an advertising trade journal, went to Boston to track the media expenditures of all Presidential candidates from both political parties in the Massachusetts primary.

An amazing trend was spotted. Of the $614,300 spent in Boston, 75 percent went into TV, 14 percent went into radio, 11 percent into newspapers.

Not a penny went into magazines. A trend that's truly enough to boggle a magazine man's imagination.

Not only does a magazine page offer a politician the room to tell a story without regard to a 30 or 60 second time limit, it also presents a constituency that's difficult to ignore.

Magazines, as any media expert knows, offer the most upscale audience of any medium.

In a magazine audience are more people of financial substance, more people who are civically and politically involved, more people who are college graduates.

In it, also, is a volume of votes totally out of proportion to the actual size of the audience.

In 1972, 78.8 percent of all college educated—the magazine audience—cast their ballot for the candidate of their choice. While only 58.1 percent of the rest of the population showed up at the polls.

What this country needs is a way to put advertising where it's needed most.

As a great many advertisers are discovering, you don't necessarily have to run advertising coast to coast to be hugely successful coast to coast.

This relatively new and moderately sophisticated advertising technique is called spot marketing.

It's an excellent technique, we think, for a political candidate with limited funds. Or a political candidate who feels four years in office shouldn't cost the fortune it has lately.

With spot marketing, your national effort is at most only a thin blanket. You use the bulk of your money to run heavy campaigns in areas where you have the best opportunities or the worst problems.

What makes spot marketing possible is

For spot TV and radio, you call local stations.

For spot magazine, you do what more and more advertisers are doing every day. You call Magazine Networks.

Magazine Networks. Its roots are in the grassroots.

Before Magazine Networks, the only people who could afford the precise media characteristics of big magazines were big advertisers.

An unfortunate circumstance we proceeded to remedy in 1968.

We put together networks of magazines and the ingenious idea of common printing whole sections of Spot marketing. An excellent technique to employ when there's a pocket of people who don't understand you.

message and apply a prodigious amount of weight to the particular problems of a particular market.

It's becoming a big idea in the big-time.

In creating an opportunity for some of the smallest names in local advertising, it seems we created one for some of the biggest names in national and regional advertising as well.

The chance to target a message in more local markets, against more kinds of prospects, in more national magazines than ever possible before.

With that kind of rare opportunity, a lot of advertisers who felt a crying need to avoid media waste were quick to give Mag-; azine Networks the test.

And as their successes prove, it works. It's a perfect way to run a basic campaign. Or heavy up in special market areas. Or test market.

It's even a beautiful way to boost—or get-co-op money.

Does Magazine Networks have a solid platform to stand on?

If we did not sincerely believe we did, you can be sure we wouldn't be running this ad.

Despite the fact that Magazine Networks is a most favorable advertising environment, it will, of course, never replace TV.

There is, however, a large group of people who do not watch TV.

To reach them, you need the precision of a magazine media buy. To reach them most efficiently and most emphatically, you need the precision of a magazine media buy taken to its most logical, intelligent extreme-Magazine Networks.

If we've piqued your curiosity at all, we suggest you call or use the coupon.

No pension plan?

Start your own Individual Retirement Account and get up to a $1,500 annual tax deduction with weekly, monthly or lump sum deposits.

The Dime will handle all details for you.

Your chances of enjoying a secure, comfortable retirement get better all the time. Even if you work for an employer that doesn't have a pension program. Here's why?

The government now allows you to set up your own pension plan if your employer does not provide one. You can create an Individual Retirement Account and put into it as much as 15% of your pay up to a limit of $1,500 yearly. Deposits can be made weekly, monthly, or in a lump sum. Whatever is most convenient for you.

The money you put in is tax-deductible from your income. The deposit and any interest or dividends earned in your IRA plan are not taxable, but deferred, until you begin making withdrawals upon retirement.

The Dime makes setting up an IRA plan easy.

TOW, Joby 11 metropolities possible and plants of the possible region collins to the properties of the possible region collins to the possible region colli The 5-cylinder Mercedes-Benz 300D. Another engineering milestone that has quietly inspired a change in traditional automotive design.

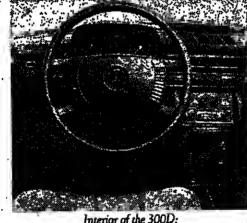

The Mercedes-Benz 300D has quietly changed the rules of the automobile game. This 5-cylinder Diesel automobile is an engineering milestone that offers a unique combination of performance, luxury, economy and quality.

In fact, the Mercedes-Benz 300D has inspired new thinking in automotive design. It is the most powerful, the most responsive and the swiftest Diesel passenger car ever sold.

For other manufacturers, a car with the myriad blessings of the 300D is somewhere far down the road. The 300D is here now. With it, Mercedes-Benz underscores its reputation for establishing new standards.

Unique in all the world

Four decades ago, Mercedes-Benz demonstrated the benefits of Diesel power. Now, the 5-cylinder engine in the 300D widely expands that list. It banishes forever the image of the Diesel as a rough, noisy workhorse. The 300D is indeed a thoroughbred.

Interior of the 300D:

Unlike any other make, the 300D takes advantage of precombustion chamber Diesel engine design. This development, pioneered by Mercedes-Benz, delivers a longer, smoother power pulse as well as more efficient combustion. The result: A combination of mileage and exhaust emission levels that no comparable gasoline-engined sedan can approach.

Of course, the exact mileage you get depends on how and where you drive, as well as the condition and equipment of your automobile. But according to estimates published by the Federal Environmental Protection Agency (highway driving: 28 mpg; city driving: 22 mpg), the 20,6-gallon fuel supply of the 300D should have no trouble letting it cruise 500 highway miles between fill-ups.

Even if all your driving were in town, your 300D should stop-and-go more than 400 miles on a single tank. Compare that to your present car-

No tune-ups-ever

When you do stop for fuel, a 300D offers several more pleasant surprises. First, Diesel fuel is usually cheaper than even regular gasoline. Countrywide, the difference averages 4¢-7¢ per gallon less. Second, Diesel fuel is plentiful. Thousands and thousands of stations sell it all across America. Third, since Diesel fuel has. more energy per gallon than gasoline, every gallon not only costs you less, it takes you farther.

Another plus: With a 300D you can happily forget about that expensive automorive custom known as the conventional tune-up. Because it has no spark plugs, points, distributor, condenser or carburetor, the Mercedes-Benz 300D never, ever needs one.

The complete sedan

When you compare it to most full-sized sedans, the 300D is a materials miser. It is not as big, not as heavy and not as thirsty. But it is every bit as practical and comfortable.

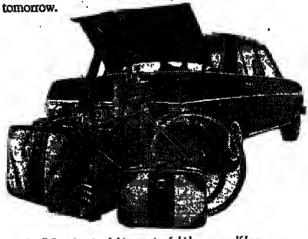

In fact, the 300D is a full 5-passenger sedan. Besides its generous interior, its trunk boasts a spacious 17.5 cubic feet of volume. On top of that, the 300D abounds with countless examples of innovative Mercedes-Benz safety engineering.

The 300D does lack one thing. A lengthy option list. The reason is its complete array of standard equipment. Included are: Power-assisted steering and brakes, automatic transmission, air conditioning, electric windows, cruise control, central locking sysrem, halogen fog lights and an AM/FM receiver.

The forerunner's reward

Clearly, the 300D goes a long way towards previewing the sedan of the future. As a result, this forerunner will doubtless be a standout in a final key area. Resale. value. Over the past five years Mercedes-Benz auto-

Some Good Plays Remain Hidden in the Closed Room

By ALAN TRUSCOTT

When major matches are shown to an audience oo a Vu-graph screen, four of the players are hathed in limelight. Every move they make is scrutinized by a larga audience and by expert commentators who are in a position to provide doubledummy analysis.

But the four other players, io tha closed room, enjoy relative obscurity, a mixed hlessing. Their misdeameanors may be covered up, hut their good plays may also remain hidden

The South player on the diagramed deal from the receot Bicentennial match in Springfield, Mass., would have been happy to have the audience admire his dummy-play, but unfortunately he was in the closed room.

Decision Is Regretted

Four spades would have been an easy enough coo-tract for North-South hut they were pushed to five they were pushed to five spades. West's jump-shift response on the first round was weak in the partnership style, and he followed with a sacrifice of five diamonds, relying on the favorable vulner-ability. South made a dubious decision hy overruling his partner and pulling the dou-ble of five diamonds to five

He regretted his decisioo

So declarer led the spade queen at the second trick, and West woo with the king and led the diamond queen

Declarer woo in dummy with the ace, and played the club jack, ruffing with the spade eight when East covered with the king. The declarer was oow sure of the distribution: West's hidding had shown seven diamonds, and he had produced two clubs and one spade. His three other cards must be hearts, for East would have opened ooe heart holding five cards in that suit.

So South led to the heart ace and played another high club, discarding a heart when East played low. Another club lead removed the ace, and a low heart was ruffed. Declarer returned to his hand

By CHRISTOPHER LEHMANN-HAUPT

A FEAST OF SNAKES, By Harry Crews. 177 pages. Atheneum. $7.95.

You expect extremes of violence and grotesqueness in the fiction of Harry Crews, and in bis latest novel, "A Feast of Snakes," you surely get them. Just to sample some of what happens during the Annual Rattlesnake Roundup in the rural redneck town of Mystic, Ga.: rats get fed to rattlesnakes; wives get beaten by husbands: a bulldog is nearly worn to death on a treadmili training device and then is killed by its opponent in a grisly pit fight; the local sheriff, who has already lost a leg from stepping on a pungee, stake in Vietnam, gets his sexual organ severed by a demented black woman he has forced to sleep, with him: a woman commits suicide by putting her head in a plas-

Harry Crews tic bag and knotting her husband's only tie around her neck; her daughter spends her days and nights lying in bed watching television, even when only the test pattern is showing, stopping only long enough to occasionally rub feces in her hair. All in

Yes, you expect such extremes in the fiction of Harry Crews, but what comes as a surprise is the gratuitousness of it all in "A Feast of Snakes"—the sense you get that Mr. Crews is piling it on for the sake of shocking us. And the predictability of the violence—that is something new also. For instance, the climax of Mystic's Annual Rattlesnake Roundup is traditionally a snake hunt in which the contestants toss their catches into a pit in the center of a trailer park. And you just know, given the explosive natures of Mr. Crews's leading characters—especially Joe Lon Mackey, the former high school football star who finds himself over the hill at the age of 21-how the story is going to eod up.

Sure ecough, on the dsy of the snake hunt Joe Lon finally goes berserk and begins shooting people down at random with his shotgun. "And a whole wall of men and women, their mouths open, teeth bared, moved with a single raging voice upon Joe Lon. He never dropped his gun. He simply held it and watched as their hands came upon him and he was raised high in the air. The gun went into the snakepit with him. He fell into the boiling soakes, went under and came up, like a swimmer breaking water. For the briefest instant, he gained his feet. Snakes hung from his face." "A Feast of Snakes," get

Harry Crews has committed to paper many fairly extreme atrocities in the course of his seven previous novels-for instance, the ax murder perpetrated by the legless Marvin Molar at the end of "The Gypsy's Curse," or the idiot drowned in his water-bed in "The Hawk Is Dying," or the attempt by a junk dealer's son literally to devour an automobile in "Car." But, to Mr. Crews's credit as an artist, his most bizarre conceptions have usually seemed surprising yet plausible—surprising simply be-cause one hadn't expected them; plausible because, come to think of it, they are oerfectly consistent with the behavior of the characters who committed them. Io other words, Mr. Crews has taken some startling risks in his fiction, but he has succeeded more often than not because he writes with supreme confidence in the logic of his misshapen Imaginative world.

Neither Plausible Nor Surprising

What then has gone awry in "A Feast of Snakes" that all the atrocities should seem neither plausible nor surprising: The trouble. I think, lies in Joe Lon Mackey, Mr. Crews's protagonist, who for all his rage and frustration over the hopelessness of his life is simply too normal for the gro-tesque landscape that surrounds him. In-stead of symbolizing human rage to an absurd degree—in the way that the automobile eater of "Car" parodied pointless ambition, or that legless Marvin Molar mocked the handicapped—Joe Lon is really an average man with a reasonably familiar problem. "He did not know what love was. And he did not know what good it was. But he knew he carried it around with him, a scabrous spot of rot, of contagion, for which there was no cure." Despite the hyped-up language with which it is described, it is not a problem monstrous enough, at least on a symbolic level, to deserve such a horrifying resolution.

"A Feast of Snakes" is probably not as precipitous a desceot from Mr. Crews's previous work as it seems; when you take the sort of risks that he does, you are bound to fall farther when you miss. Still, toward the end of the oovel, when one comes across a particularly excessive description of the slaughter of an anaconda by children, one can't help noting the sentence, "There was an enormous amount of guts and blood and it didn't smell good at all." That, I'm afraid, describes this

In the United States today, there is more worker-controlled capital than there is in such nominally socialist countries as Cuba, Yugoslavia and Poland. Over the past three decades, the growth of pension funds has revolutionized America's economy-and hardly anyone has noticed it. One expert who has been paying attention is Peter F. Drucker, the noted economist and management consultant. He has now written an eye-opening analysis of the ways in which "pension fund socialism" has influenced and will continue to influence such crucial issues as national economic policy, inflation, jobs and retirement, and the uncertain future of Social Security. Clear, direct and hard-hitting, Drucker's book is sure to spark a national debate on a revolution that will affect every American.

Mr. Carter's Economics

In his well-planned and shrewdly executed campaign for the Democratic Presidential nomination, Governor Jimmy Carter has sought to avoid making the two fundamental mistakes on economic issues that hurt Senator George McGovern so badly in his contest with Richard Nixon in 1972.

One mistake Senator McGovern made was in exposing himself to attack, however unfair, as a radical populistas a foe of business who, it was alleged, would foul up the American economy in his effort to take from the rich (and the middle class) to help the poor. His other basic mistake in the field of economics was to get bogged down in the details (imperfectly mastered and presented) of complex proposals, especially for welfare and tax reform.

Governor Carter has gone out of his way, over and over, to reassure the business community by stressing his respect for the private sector as the best means of solving national problems. For instance, to get rid of unemployment, he has said that "whenever there is a choice between channeling jobs in the private sector or the public, I would favor the private." This priority for the private sector has won Mr. Carter the reputation of being a "conservative"—or at least, more conservative than the other Democratic candidates whom he defeated in the primaries.

Yet a careful look at the entire Carter position discloses that he is not a conservative in the laissez-faire sense. He would actively employ public means to solve national problems, and his ranking of problems is dramatically different from that of the Ford Administration. He has made it clear that be considers unemployment, rather than inflation, the number one problem facing the nation. He hastens to add that inflation is the number two problem and, once the unemployment stack bad been taken in, he would reinforce anti-inflation measures, if necessary, with an incomes policy to keep wage and price actions more in line with the growth of

There is little doubt that the election campaign has already been an intense learning experience for Mr. Carter. He is setting no interest-rate targets; whatever populist convictions he may once have had about very low interest rates seem to have disappeared into a broader understanding of the relation of interest rates to other economic variables.

Mr. Carter has been extremely cautious about disclosing the specifics of programs to reform the tax system. improve the welfare system, aid the cities, strengthen Social Security, expand public health programs, conserve energy or develop new resources. His caution appears to derive from a desire to avoid exposing himself to the opposition of groups who may think they will be hurt by particular proposals, when these are revealed piecemeal.

Having won the Democratic nomination by avoidance of details and a generally moderate tone, reassuring to widely diverse groups, Mr. Carter will be understandably tempted to pursue the same tactics during the election campaign against his Republican opponent. In our view, this would be a mistake.

Although it is not necessary to spell out every detail of his programs before the election, the country has a right to know with more exactitude than it now does where Mr. Carter stands on the major economic issues, and how be means to solve them.

Don Bolles' Legacy

The news from Arizona during the past month has made it clear that the Southwestern sun has drawn more than Northern business and the retired elderly to the nation's frontier country. In the wake of the murder of Don Bolles, a 47-year-old reporter for The Arizona Republic, investigations have indicated that the migrants' money not only bas pulled organized crime to the sunhelt, but has nourished a good deal of indigenous greed

Mr. Bolles, who was working on a story about organized crime, was lured on June 2 to a Phoenix botel by someone offering information about a prominent Arizona politician. The reporter was blown apart in his car, and died 12 days later. Apparently a lot of people in Arizona had reason to fear Don Bolles. He had written stories about organized crime, widespread real estate swindles and questionable state government appointments.

With the investigation into the murder case, a good deal of recent and unseemly Arizona history has surfaced. For example, a number of members of the Mafia have migrated to Arizona and have gone into the real estate business. Some solid citizens have become involved in land fraud and sporting enterprises that appear to bave underworld connections.

The police have been hampered in their efforts to get prosecutions against some swindlers, in part because one of the prosecutors, whn has recently resigned, had been sexually compromised by a female employee of two land companies he was supposed to be investigating. Some prosecutions have been impeded by the murders of two witnesses—one by an auto bomb blast similar to the one that killed Mr. Bolles-and a timely and fatal heart attack suffered by a third man who was under investigation for bribery.

Now that the lid has been ripped off the Arizona cesspool, the police, the prosecutors and the Arizona press are pursuing corruption vigorously. For any number of . good reasons, and particularly Don Bolles' memory, the current investigative zeal should not stop with the solution of that one murder. Mr. Bolles seemed to be after all the elements-both the obviously corrupt and the superficially respectable—that made up the land fraud

It is essential that the Arizona press and public keep up the pressure on law-enforcement and prosecuting authorities to ensure that the grim trail Don Bolles pursued is followed to the end.

Vietnam

Vietnam is united after 22 years; the old Vietminh movement rules an undivided country from its capital of Hanoi. The flag and anthem of North Vietnam are now seen and heard officially from Cao Lang in the north to Cau Mau in the south.

The formal proclamation of reunification on July 2 created barely a ripple in faraway foreign capitals that once had assigned strategic significance to every square kilometer of Vietnamese landscape. The all-consuming passion of a whole political generation, Vietnam has all but disappeared from the American consciousness, except in bitter memory that few in or out of public life

The ultimate collapse of the United States war effort on April 30 last year has had none of the dire consequences that the war's supporters had predicted; if anything, the effect on American life and this country's global position has been beneficial-lifting an impossible burden that drained, not enhanced, American security. In Vietnam itself, there has been no bloodbath—though the continuing detention of formerly influential South Vietnamese in "reeducation camps" smells more and more of long-term repression.

Vietnam and the United States would both benefit from an early establishment of diplomatic relations, though the heat of an election campaign may not be the ideal moment to raise any sensitive issue that can be Ever maneuvering among eager foreign influences, including the rival Communist superpowers, the Vietnamese leaders remain hopeful of United States investment and development assistance—lest they grow too dependent on the largesse flowing in from the Soviet Union. Establishment of official relations might even make it easier to obtain whatever information may still be available about missing American servicemen.

In any event, there is no longer any need for perpetuating this country's estrangement from a non-aligned national Communist force of great potential influence in

Dynamic of Despair

The Palestinian leader Yasir Arafat may have made a fateful miscalculation within the past month or so, for which his Palestine Liberation Organization and the people of Lebanon are paying a-terrible price. By encouraging all-out resistance to Syrian advances into Lebanoo, the P.L.O. leader has prolonged and intensified a futile civil war-and pitted bis political movement against strong and previously sympathetic forcea in the Arab Middle East.

This interpretation of the growing Lebanese disaster gains credence with each passing day, as murderous combat rages ever more directly hetween Palestinian and Syrian armed forces. The Lebanese militias, predominantly Christian and conservative on one side, largely Moslem and leftist on the other, stand as proxy warriors in a broad clash of powerful interests that cut through the Arab world.

In the early phases of the Lebanese civil war, Mr. Arafat and his lieutenants managed skillfully to stay aloof, even playing an important and constructive role in short-lived mediation efforts. Considering the imposing military positions which the P.L.O. controlled, particularly in southern Lebanon, it was perhaps inevitable that the guerrilla forces would eventually hecome engaged. Palestinian commanders were clearly apprehensive that Syria's mounting influence in Lebanon would diminish their own freedom of action. As late as five weeks ago, however, when the Syrian Army advanced openly into Lebanon in an effort to impose a truce, most analysts believe that Mr. Arafat could have struck a deal to divide policing responsibilities with his ideological mentor, Syrian President Assad, and reverse the escalating bloodshed. Instead, the Palestinian leader irrevocably threw his lot in with the Lebanese leftists in opposition to the Syrian advance, maneuvering politically alongside other Arab governments which could opportunistically condemn the Syrians from afar, but do little to help the Palestinians in their besieged positions on the ground. The result is continued bloody combat, collapse of Arab League "peacemaking" efforts, and the threatened decimation of the P.L.O. as a military

In their frustration, radical Arab forces which would otherwise have rallied behind the P.L.O. and the Lebanese leftists seem to be striking out in other directions: an apparently Libyan-hacked attempt to overthrow the moderate Government of Sudan, and the desperate hijacking of a commercial flight out of Israel, with all its dramatic consequences.

No one in or out of the Arab world can claim any clear idea of the further evolution of the Lebanese imbroglio. The United Nations Security Council fiddles away in a bid to condemn a successful Israeli effort to save the lives of innocent hostages, while in Lebanon the passions of anarchy take away the life of a whole

About Choosing a Fit President

To the Editor:

As we approach the nominating conventions and the elections, we increasmgly face the problem of the basic caliber and character of the candidates for both the Presidency and the Vice Presidency. Some thought has been given to FBL investigation, and there is great concern about avoiding an Eagleton situation.

To paraphrase the period we are celebrating, a decent respect to our own history is in order. There was a legislator who uncharacteristically was absent from the job, and there was gossip about whether or not he was having "fits." This gentleman was "reduced and emaciated in appearance and [seemed] scarcely to possess strength enough to speak above a whisper . . . " The party in question admitted to baving made a "most discreditable exhibition of [himself] hy way of hypochondriaism. . ." After walking around and brooding, he wrote a long letter to a physician in London, who responded that he had to see the patient.

The legislator was Abraham Lincoln, who was brooding about Mary Todd. My anthority is Carl Sandburg. Upon a thorough investigation, we might not have bad Mr. Lincoln as President during critical years of our Republic about a hundred years ago.

Again turning to the Lincoln story, the comments of Lord Charnwood, who wrote for the British press and covered the Republican Presidential convention at which Lincoln was

The Future Economies To the Editor:

On June 28 I read with interest on the Op-Ed page "After the Corporation" by Gar Alperovitz and Jeff Faux. It would be interesting to know the names of the 25 foundatious who have supplied the funds to define practical approaches to economic reconstruction. The writers have been kind enough to tooe down the terror they strike in the hearts of those who believe in the free enterprise system with the sentence: "The transition to new forms of organization beyond the giant corporation will not occur overnight; nor is it ioevitable."

Let us examioe what their objective ls: The destruction of the free enterprise system is supposed to bring about a considerable improvement in the redistribution of income and wealth. Something akin to the doing away with free enterprise has already taken place in the Soviet Union and is well advaoced in England. In 1924. when Socialism was almost destroyed in the Soviet Union, even Lenin saw fit to reintroduce free enterprise to help save the socialist experiment.

Is this the type of success story we are supposed to look forward to? Nothing seems to be said about this nation with more than 80 million employed, more than one million houses built each year and almost ten million new automobiles purchased each year. Is this the picture of a failure? Is England a better example? Is the Soviet Union a better example?

'The Most Magnificent Day'

We had the indescribably good fortune to be aboard one of the sbips in the Operation Sail parade July 4. The daylong experience was beyond my power to put to words, but it was without question the most magnificent and exciting day of my life.

As the event drew closer, the magnitude of the whole day's proceedings became more overwhelming, from the logistics of getting ready to the closing fireworks and myriad other festivities all around the city. I had confideoce that New York would achieve this memorable occasion ,and what's more, most likely without any untoward iocidents. I was convinced that no other city in the United States, and probably none in the world, could do the same

The fact that this stunning Bicentennial observance, seen and enjoyed hy literally millions, took place without any significant problem is testimony to the fact that New York is indeed and without question the Big Apple. The magnificent parade of sbips went smoothly, onshore arrangements were

As we left New York in the evening, we passed countless small clehrations with mariachi bands, jazz bands, block parties of every description, cook-outs, ethnic festivals and general widespread joy. It was a delight to see a happy New York City.

None of the couotless misfortunes or problems that could well have occurred happened. Murphy and his law were not only out to lunch but had taken a long weekend. Despite its mis-fortunes, New York is the greatest city in the country, if not the world, and it is sad that its reputation bas recently been so tarnished mostly by fiscal matters. There is something about a national political convention that brings to mind that practitioner of the super-barb, the man who every four years hustled off to cover what he considered n "spectacle as fascinating as a hanging, and often as grisly." So we turn the clock back to 1948 when this byline and story appeared in Tha Baltimore Sun:

By H. L. Mencken

. The opening exercises were of the usual boresome imbecility. Bad speakers, one after another, did their stuff while the delegates and alternates milled io the aisles and the sparse mob in the galleries melted away.

Ban the Balm!

ESSAY

By William Safire

Around the beginning of this century, the Democratic Party io convention assembled followed its heart and chose William Jenniogs Bryan with his philosophy of populism. Three times, Bryan and bis populist dream of the redistribution of wealth weot down to defeat.

This is the week that the Democratic Party embraces and exalts a wholly different philosophy with a aimilar name: popularism. Here in New York -a city tingling with the one-twothree stimulation of the tall ships, the gracious Queen, and the Democratic coronation—popularism is seeo as the nath to victory.

Popularism turns on its bead the old method of political appeal, which used to say "Here are my beliefs, and if you agree with them, follow me." Popularism says "Tell me what your beliefs are, and I will sgree with them, and then you can follow me."

That is Jimmy Carter's way, and he makes no bones about it. In a prepared speech, be said recently that be bad listened to the voters in his loog campaign and "what we learned we gave back to them in a political program that reflected what they wanted, not what we wanted for them."

That is popularism, stark and candid. Nor ia it especially original: four years ago, a candidate for President whose nama slips even John Connally's mind said, "On matters affecting basic buman values—on the way Americans live their lives and bring up their children-1 am going to respect and reflect the opinion of the people themselves. That is what democracy is all about."

Reflecting the popular will is what democracy is partly about. Democracy is also about leading and shaping the short-term popular will so that we act justly and accept a great oatioo's responsibilities. Most political leaders of past years have sought to reflect the popular will in most areas for a particular porpose; to streogthen their base, enabling them to lead in some other areas that might not be popular.

Not so Mr. Carter. For the first time, we are confronted with popularism not as a means to an end, but as the end in itself. If we are to believe what he says, and we have no reason oot to, it is his goal to do what most people want all of the time.

That is why ha spends a great deal of money on polls; ha adjusts his posltion to his perceived consensus. Unconcerned with the bobgoblins of consistency, he believes whatever is unpopular is "divisive" and thus wrong.

As Charles Mohr bas suggested, in politics Mr. Carter is remarkably nonevangelical. Like the lost firebrand in the French revolution, he bas to fiod out where his people are marching, "for I am their leader."

Is popularism pernicious? In theory, ootbing could be more democratic: a government doing what the people want, with those desires scientifically measured, - and not - burdening the people with "what we wanted for them." Imagine: a four-year floating referendum.

In campaign practice, popularism is proving to be effective. To Democratic delegates who lived through two selftorturing conventions, there is no inclination now to ban the balm. When winning is all, Scoop Jackson's lion will lie down with Frank Church's lamb, and a platform will be adopted that lambastes of debbil inflation and proposes huge government employmeot-as if no contradiction existed.

But that's where popularism fails. The people, being human, want everything: more employment and less ioflation, more services and less taxes, more respect and less defense. Although oothing is wrong with trying to give the people much of what they want, everything is wrong with pretending you can give the people all they want.

Real life involves choice, and choice involves pain, and the last thing Democrats want this week is the paio of "divisiveness." So the symbol of the Democratic Convention is oot the tear gas of 1968, not the flowers and beads of 1972, but the Great Forced. Smile of 1976. They have determined that the overriding issue of our time is that the Outs should be the Ins.

Far be it from this lover of politics to burden the euphoria of Democrats who think they will be running against a sitting Presidential duck.

On the contrary, I will drape a bright yellow press pass over my tarnished tieclasp, go to the new Madison Square Gardeo, and whisper the secret question; what's the first name of Hawkins in Humphrey-Hawkins? That will get me on the coovention floor during a spontaneous demonstration.

Not because I am a Democrat, s Carter supporter, a popularist or a seeker after truth, but because I get an inexplicable kick out of the carefully-choreographed hoopla of spontaneous demonstratioos, Such a feeling is both of and above politics.

"A convention feels about demonstrations," wrote William Jenoings Bryan, "somewhat like the blg man". who had a small wife who was in the habit of beating him. When asked why be permitted it, he replied that it seemed to please ber and did not hurt him."

Transition

By Tom Hayden

At first, it will seem like quite a change, to be at the Democrate National fornia delegation, haviog beeo gassed and indicted in Chicago. But times have changed. Those who wanted to jail the likes of me have gone to jail themselves, or are purged from office. The corporate scandals, sex scandals, cheating scandals, Federal Bureau of Investigation-Central Intelligeoce Agency scandals of today confirm the analysis of yesteryear's radicals. In fact, the radicalism of the 60's is fast becoming the commoo sense of the 70's. That is why my Senate campaign bere in California did so well. Wa received 1.2 million votes, more than Jimmy Carter, indeed more than past opposition campaigns like those of Upton Sinclair, Henry Wallace, Eugene

The changing consciousness was dramatized by our organization in conservative Oranga County Our organizers included an ex-prisoner of war, a policewoman, a gold prospector, and the security was bandled by a former undercover agent of the Chicago police department. We got 40 percent of the primary vote.

Out of our campaign will emerge a new progressive force in California politics. Our activists will work on a farm-labor initiative and oumerous local campaigns this fall. By the spring, we hope to convena a new political alliance with the power to elect candidates and shape issues for years.

I see the same trend elsewhere. Recently, I attended a national conference in Texas of state and local officials, exploring alternatives to status quo politics. Kind of like the Students for Democratic Society approaching middle age. Present were bundreds of 60's activists, many now elected officials, like the treasurer of Colorado. the sheriff of San Francisco, Senators from North Dakota and Nebraska, mayors from Austin and Madison, city council members from Atlanta and Washington, D.C.

But I sense little of this trend in the Democratic Nation, T Convention, at least not in the inguer circles. There is something too reassuring about pressure for unity Fine. For what? To Then what? It is as if the Democratic Party is rebounding in the extreme from the divisive internal politics of 1968 and 1972. Everybody who was then on the outside can now be on the inside, or at least the edge. But underlying this surface unity is an absence of new direction.

If and when Jimmy Carter is elected, the politics of personality will end. The public will soon enough be reminded that neither the broadest of smiles nor the most devout pledge of honesty will deliver us from the crisis period we have entered.

The rampant climate of scandal in America is a sign of the decay of established authority of the last 30 years. We are entering into a radically new age of ledts, with the same leadership and old philosophy. We have This news story was reproduced from expansionist corporations and goalong unions, expansionist energy strategies, interventionist foreign designs and a continuing ethic of conspicuous, and wasteful consumption. But we live in a world of shrinking Convention as an al- resources, new sovereignties and a ternate in the Cali- new balance of power.

From the day Jimmy Carter takes office, be will find himself engulfed with corporate and eoergy priorities that will require a sharpening competition for scarce global resources and high costs passed on to consumers. He will inherit a C.I.A. that will continue lying to the American people. He will bave warmed-over Kissingers, like Zbigniew Brzezinski and others in the Trilateral Commission and Council on Foreign Relatioos. taking us into oew foreign policy crises to save the West.

What is the alternative? Born rudely in the streets of the 60's, tha alternative bas been taking shape gradually in the halls of local government, in the unions, neighborhoods and consumer and environmentalist groups of this

The new democratic philosophy will reject both Wall Street and Wasbington bureaucracies in favor of extending the Bill of Rights further into the place of work and services.

It is a new generation of leadership shaped by Viatnam and Watergate, not by the Depression and World War II. Our Pearl Harbor was the pattern of assassinations and conspiracies aimed at our liberty. The coming political leadership will be cooditioned to believe the threat to America is in the private citadels of power, not in foreign guerrilla movements. This generation is more likely to be concerned with human values and the quality of life than the accumulation of power, possessioo and profit.

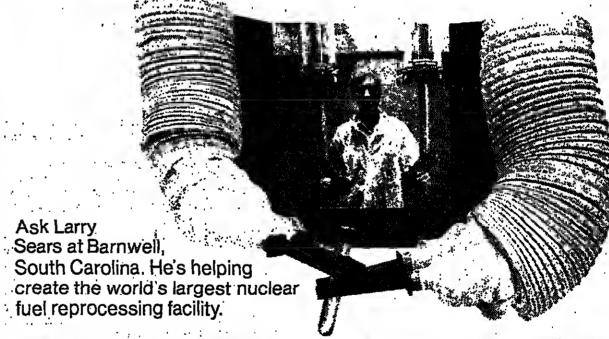

There will be an undercurrent of discontent at this convention, perhaps the embryo of an alternative. The generational crisis we now have passed through will create a oew kind of leadership just as influential as that of the men of the Second World War -from Eisenhower to Kennedy to Johnson to Nixon to Ford to Carterwhose time is passing into history.

I'm hopeful about the potential in this country. Not in the cliche sense that politicians: always declare. I'm hopeful because I see so many American's demanding change today who were blind defenders of tha status auo Jimmy Carter. There is overwhelming a few years ago. It takes great courage and self-respect for people to say, as put a Democrat in the White House. a Fresno policeman told me: "You're going to get a lot of votes from people who hated you a few years ago. We were wrong and misled."

> This continual discovery of the openmindedness of people since Watergate bas given me the strength to cootinue trying to persuade and organize instead of abandoning the process for extremes of despair. It has made me more patient, believing that the good in all of us can be touched and liberated.

Allied-General Nuclear Services, a partnership of Allied Chemical and General Atomic, is investing $250 million in land, buildings, equipment and safety systems so that used nuclear fuel from the nation's nuclear power plants can be reclaimed and recycled to meet our country's growing energy needs.

In full operation, this plant will process the fuel from 50-60 power reactors every year. This recycled fuel will provide the energy equivalent of almost 70 million tons of coal or nearly 300 million barrels of crude oil. That's almost $3 billion the U.S. won't have to spend on foreign oil every year this plant operates.

There's another plus. As nuclear fuel generates more of our energy, large amounts of costly oil now being burned up as fuel will be available for the production of chemicals, plastics, textiles and hundreds of other products that utilize petrochemicals as a base.

Where are we getting the $125 million-our share of this important technological venture? A good part of it came from profits. We plow back about three-fifths of each dollar we earn into capital expansion, such as modernizing plants, replacing equipment, starting new operations like Barnwell. The rest is paid out in dividends to stockholders.

For the next 10 years, business must invest trillions of dollars to expand, modemize, control pollution, develop alternative sources of energy, increase productivity and hold down inflation-to protect the quality of life Americans enjoy.

Cutting back on the profits business needs to create jobs like Larry's would be like squeezing the breath out of America's

A message to consumers from the Pepsi-Cola Company.

We have believed for a long time that we produce a better-tasting product than our leading competitor. But we wanted to be sure of that fact. We did not want to advertise it until we had it documented by careful, objective, independent research. We now have that documentation.

Truth in advertising is very important to us. And the truth is:

NATIONWIDE, MORE COCA-COLA DRINKERS PREFER PEPSI THAN COKE.

The better taste we always thought we had has now been confirmed by blind taste tests conducted among thousands of people in over a hundred cities and towns throughout this country. This concrete fact may explain some of the strange advertising sponsored by the Coca-Cola Company lately. Advertising like the silly blindfold commercials comparing Fresca (a sugar-free, citrus flavored drink) with Pepsi. These commercials announce that one third of the participants chose Fresca. They fail to point out that what this actually means is that two thirds preferred Pepsi.

Now they've come out with a series of comparative commercials in which both Pepsi and Coke are tasted side-by-side. In these, they claim that New Yorkers prefer Coke to Pepsi 2 to 1. But each product in these commercial tests is clearly identified. How can the results be valid when the only fair test must be a blind test, eliminating the bias of habit, which may have nothing to do with taste.

All this is Coca-Cola's attempt to answer what we call, "The Pepsi Challenge." The fact that none of these efforts constitute a real answer is not surprising. After all, how can there be a real answer when there is no real question, no question whatsoever that NATIONWIDE, MORE COCA-COLA DRINKERS PREFER PEPSI THAN COKE. (And, of course, Pepsi-Cola drinkers overwhelmingly prefer Pepsi.)

But don't take our word for it. Don't take anybody's word for it-

Adrenaline and Desire

Rowing is one of the most grueling of competitiva sports. Unlike those sports whose basic characteristic is hand-eye coordination — tennis, for instance - crew is a sport whose essence is strength, conditioning and a special kind of nerve: the nerve to push oneself past seeming physical limits, past the pain barrier, so that the last stretch of a race is carried out on adrenaline and desire. # Climatologists Forecast Stormy Economic Future

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M.-It was supposed to have been just a brief chat. Nelson Bonker Hunt is a busy man. But the Dallas man, who is a millionaire many times over, became so intrigued with what Iben Browning had to say about climate shifts that he spent the whole day listening.

"The ramifications of what he says are pretty startling," said Mr. Hunt. "I never thought about climate before but oow I think about it all the time." A lot of other people are doing the same. The weather seems to have gone berserk lately. The tennis courts at Wimhledon in England have not been as parched since the 1920's. The same is true for croplands in northern France, the Soviet Union, Minnesota and the Dakotas. It's so dry, hrush fires have started several weeks early in California, and water is being rationed.

As a result, Dr. Browning and other previously ignored climatologists are getting a lot of attention. Projections that they made years ago appear to be coming true.

They believe that the earth's climate has moved into a cooling cycle, which means highly erratic weather for decades to come. And that, they say, has profound implications - most of them bad — for world food production, economic stability and social order. With the world's population now so high, the results of even minor yearto-year shifts in climate could be catastropihe, they say.

Skeptical Scientists

Some scientists think all that is nonsense, mainly because climatologists can offer no scientific proof to back up their theories. If mereorologists, using sophisticated computers, can forecast weather only a day or two in advance, they ask, how can climatologists project climate years ahead?

"It's interesting," said one skeptical scientist. "But some of their stuff is right out of fantasy land."

However, hig investors and intelli-gence analysts are paying serious new

The leftist-controlled radio said that Yasir Arafat, the head of the Palestine Liberation Organization, had telephoned President Houari Boumediene of Algeria and Muammar el-Qaddafi, the Libyan leader, saying that the situation was deteriorating fast. [Page Al, Columns 1-2.] President Idi Amin of Uganda apparently is distilusioned with pro-Palestinian terrorism. He telephoned a friend in Israel this weekend and said that he was "finished with the terrorists" and that "they caused me a lot of trouble." The friend was Lieut. Col. Baruch Bar-Lev, now retired, who headed a military mission in Kampala before Uganda broke diplomatic relations with Israel. The conversation was directed in an Israeli newspaper and was later confirmed by the colonel, who said that President Amin had asked him to relay his decision to Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin. Mr. Amin also asked whether Israel could send spare parts for the tanks; trucks, halftracks and mortars that Israel had supplied when the two nations were friendly. [A1:3.]

Canada apparently has won its political dispute with the International Olympic Committee over Taiwan's insistence on participating in the Olympic Games as the Republic of China. At an emotional news conference in Montreal, Lawrence S. Ting, chief of the Taiwanese delegation, said that the LO.C. had "lost the battle" to allow Taiwan to enter the Games. Lord Killanin, president of tha I.O.C., Mr. Ting said, told him that he would recommend to the LO.C.'s board acceptance of the Canadian Government's terms. [D9:6.]

In a television interview on the eve of the Democratic National Convention, Jimmy Carter said that he planned no surprises and that he would choose a Vice-Presidential nominee from a group of seven nationally prominent prospects, all of whom are members of Congress, your days of harmony were experted at the convention [A1.8.]

Jimmy Carter and a group of leading women Democrats were unable to reach agreement on a specific proposal for expanding the participation of women in the party's 1980 convention. Mr. Carter aaid that he could not accept the language of the proposed rule that the women had brought to the meeting and he made arrangements for another meeting today and expressed confidence that an acceptable compromise would then be worked out. [Al:4-7.]

-Ten thousand people seeking to persuade the Democratic National Convention to take a stand against abortion held a rally in Central Park's Sheep Meadow and then marched two miles down to the Madison Square Garden. The principal speaker at the March for Life was Ellen McCormack, a 49-year-old housewife of Merrick L. I., who has campaigned for the Democratic Presidential nomination in 18 primaries. She will make another attempt to get the nomination at the convention. About 700 advocates of rights for homosexuals also marched-up from Washington Squara to the Madison Square Garden area—demanding the repeal of antisodomy laws. [C20:5-8.]

The city's religious community, its leaders say, bas been aroused to its highest level of concern for social and economic issues in many years through the efforts of Episcopal Bishop Paul Moore Jr. of New York. In Saturday's New York Times, an article on the Concorde supersonic airliner stated incorrectly that the one sonic boom created by the plane in the first month of flights to the United States had stirred up public complaints. It stirred no public complaints. In the same article, several words were dropped from a sentence that should have read, in part, that in June operations, "the noise was 'easentially equal' to that of the oldest loudest four-engine subsonic jets on landings but twice as loud a

New York Receives $15,000 in U.S. Aid To Assist Runaways

The New York City Youth Board has received a $15,000 grant from the Department of lealth, Education and Welfare to develop a summer program to provide temporary shelter, food and counseling for run-aways up to 18 years of age.

This year the number of runaways in New York City is expected to be particularly large because of the excitement generated by the Democratic National Convention and the Bicentennial.

According to Jerome M. Becker, chairman of the city's Youth Board, his agency "has taken action to address this situation" by establishing "an emergency referral center near the Democratic convention site to link the youngsters with available services."

The program, called Youth on the Run, is the coordinated effort of the Office of Neighborhood Services, Special Services for Children and the Police Department's runaways unit.

"These city agencies that nor-mally deal with runaways are providing the staff for the program," said Kenneth Nochimson, executive director of the Youth Board

Mr. Nochimson said that "the youths will be housed for no more than six days, preferably less, at crash pads throughout the city until their parents can be notified" or, if that is not feasible, untii ao alternativa plan for their care can be ar-

Participation in the program is entirely voluntary. Its main goal is to provide the youngsters with 20 alternative to the often wandering lifestyle of the runaway, which in many instances leads to prostitution and eventual arrest.

The target areas of the project extend from lower Manhattan to 59th Street. The project office for walk-ins and referrals is at 503 West 27th Street and is open every day

Man, 75, Robbed on Fifth Avenue

A 75-year-old Bronx man was mugged and robbed of $3 by two men yesterday morning at Fifth Avenue and 40th Street. One assailant tied a rope around the neck of the victim, Morris Siegal, while his partner robbed him. A passer-by notified two police officers in a radio car, and after a brief chase, the officers arrested Ronald Glover, 27, at 43d Street and Vanderbilt Avenue. The suspect was charged with robbery, assault and the possession of the rope as a dangerous weapon. The second assadant escaped.

As many as 1,800 people were jammed into the 200-foot long, wooden bleachers just before the start of the evening's race program wheo the grandstand suddenly collapsed, officials said. The fair, scheduled to end Saturday night, was closed after the accident. Four of the iojured remained hospitalized yesterday in satisfactory

Architects' Competition Slated

New York architects have been offered the chance to compete to design an apartment complex for the elderly to be huilt by the Roman Catholic Diocese of Rockville Centre, L.J. The winner of the contest, sponsored by the diocese and the New York State Association of the Americao Institute of Architects, will receive about $178,000 for the design. The 200-dwelling apartment complex for the elderly of low and moderate income will he built in Brookhaven, Suffolk County.

The association will serve as a consultant during the construction, which will be coordinated by Msgr. Henry Reel, director of the diocese's human development office

City U. Tuition: Obstacle in Leap From Kitchen to Campus

By GEORGIA DULLEA The day they voted to end free tuition at the City University of New York was the day the dinner table debates began in modest middle-class homes, debates that threaten to heat up as the summer

On one side of the table sits mother, the part-time undergraduate, who is expecting the first in a series of hefty tuition bills this fall and feeling somewhat guilty

On the other side is father, the primary breadwinner, who may not be convinced that the family budget could — or even should — be stretched to finance mother's education. And in the background there are children, some enrolled in private schools, some close to college age

"A lot of us are getting hassled at home about money. I guess I'll get hassled, too," said Kathleen Titolo, a 30-year-old mother with 75 credits toward a psychology degree at Richmond College on Staten Island,

In the next breath, though, Mrs. Titolo vowed to have ber tuition check by September "if I bave to beg, borrow or steal it."

It's not unusual to hear older women talk that way about college. They are, after all, a determined breed, part of a growing national phenomenon. Thousands of such mothers have made the leap from kitchen to campus in recent years. Many have walked off with degrees,

The Money Hurdle

Domestic hurdles pop up along the way, even in the most ideal situations. But, for the 49,000 part-time women undergraduates in the CUNY system at least, money has not been among them until now.

Now money looms as a large, possibly insurmounta-ble burdle for some women in families whose taxable income hits the $15,000 mark—not that high by today's standards, yet high enough to exclude them from the Community University Assistance Program for parttime students.

As a result, they face tuition bills of $35 to $40 a credit next fall. This, added to the babysitting and other expenses that go with a mother's college career, may mean the end of some

Marinating the Old-Fashioned Way

A recipe for a provencale beef dish that appeared in this column called for marinating the various ingredients for a period of several hours, overnight or longer. To this, Sabrina Seebus of West Cornwall, Conn., wanted to know: "Does marinating have to be done in the refrigerator? Does not the marinade penetrate the meat and tenderize it much better at room temperature? Is the marinating just a precaution during the hot summer season or for overheated apartments?"

Ideally, it would be best to marinate almost any given food outside the refrigerator to give the meat or whatever s more pronounced flavor of the marinade, a flavor fre-quently referred to as "wild or gamey." Prior to refrigeration, particularly in Europe, most marinating was done in a cool place, a cellar or another room, depending on outside temperatures. The recommendation of refrigeration is largely a precaution to insure against unwanted possibly injurious bacterial action. Under guaranteed and certain conditions, marinating may be done in the oldfashioned manner, but con-scious care must be taken that temperature and other conditions are such, there could be no question of food

And now, still more on rugelach: Following an item outlining a recipe for ruge-lach (a cookie that goes by a variety of spellings), we received a note from Dr. Rochelle Pudlowski-Naidich of New York, "My husband's grandmother, Esther Bitko, has just celebrated her 79th birthday and is still turning out culinary delights. Huitlacoche is a corn fungos that Diana called "ambrosia of the Aztec gods." It is available in Mexican restaurants in Mexico—and even there only for a brief period in summer. The thing that put these musings in our mind was a letter from a reader in Toronto asking, "What are tree ears' so commonly called for in Chinese cookbooks?" Tree ears are a mushroo n-like fungi. They are sometimes called cloud ears and black fungus and are widely available, in a dried state, generally in plastic bags, in almost every Chinese grocery store. They have a brownish black color and expand greatly when soaked in warm water for 20 minutes or so. They have a pleasant, tender, crunchy texture and the English transliteration for the names is roughly "yune erh or mue erh."

Norell culottes, designed by Gustave Tassell, in effective fashion with soft jersey.

Norell Shows That Culotte Are Graceful if Done We.

When Norman Norell last showed culottes, it created quite a furor. There were discussions about their decency, celebrities were photo-graphed wearing them and quoted extolling their com-fort, and the designer offered to make his patterns available to copycats on Seventh Avenue to be sure they were made properly. That was back in 1960, before pants became a national uniform. Indeed, knees were not in the public domainthe miniskirt badn't been invented yet. Norell introduced culottes that year to publicize the change in the man-agement of his company. He had bought out his pariner, Anthony Trains, and the label now read Norman Nor-ell instead of Traina-Norell. Culottes don't startle, any more, but they're still new and fresh looking, as Gustave Tassell demonstrated the other day when he paired them . with soft jersey or crisply tailored worsted jack-

A cross between pants and a skirt, the culotte manages to combine the ease of one and the grace of the other when it is cut properly. Mr. Tassell, who took over the design chores at the house of Norell after the designer died four years ago, makes sure it is done well. The culottes are paired with rather grand outergar-ments—a mink jacket in one case (Tassell designs furs for Michael Forrest), a fur-lined silk raincoat in another, And though culottes walk the steets these days in denim. the Norell ones are destined for women who don't faint at price tags that go into four

Most of the evening dresses are simple columns, termi-

Tunics follow the same columnar lines whether they're part of pants or dresa outfits, and rather deep arm-holes provide graceful top-ping. Their side-slits are graceful in a Chinese sort of way. Sandefjord Girls' Choir of Norway Ends Tour

By PETER G. DAVIS

Ending a three-week American tour, the Sandejord Glrls' Choir stopped off at Carnegie Hall Saturday night before returning home to Norway. The chorus, 80 voices strong, hails from the small town of Sandefjord, 75 miles south of Oslo, and is at Alice Tully Hall, regarded as something of a national treasure, having won a number of local and international prizes for choral excellence.

The choir's members range io age from 9 to 19. Since the personnel necessarily changes from year to year, the continuing quality of the group must in large part be due to its director, Sverre Valen, who founded the choir in 1956. The most immediately striking aspect of their singing is the sheer beauty and transparency of the choral sound, together with its easy flexibility in achieving the subtlest gradations of color and dynamics.

The program was of a light, tuneful nature, but nicely varied, including music by Mozart, Bach, Elgar, Kodaly and a number of Scandioavian composers. Every piece was handled with smart techoical precision and given a sensible, straightforward musical profile.

As an added touch of variety, three soprano soloists (Ellen Westberg Anderson, Malmfrid Sand Martinsen and Lilleha Lund) offered a song apiece; each is a sweetvoiced, intelligent singer. For his solo stint, the choir's ac-companist, Soren Gangflot, performed two short organ compositions by Vierne and Wildor.

Older Art Invades the Modern Museum

Invading halls long sacred to Picasso and Pollock, works by such 19th-century American realists as Asher B. Durand, Thomas Cole, George Caleb Bingham and Albert Bierstadt will appear at the Museum of Modern Art this fall.

They are part of a show called "The Natural Paradise: Painting in America 1800-1950," a Bicentennial survey of Romanticism in American art that opens Oct. 1. To be sure, the exhibition, funded by the National Endowment for the Arts, will also include canvases by the Abstract Ex-pressionists Jackson Pollock, Mark Rothko and Barnett Newman. But such an assemhly of early American talents is somewhat out of the timeframe of the Modern, whose heavily European - oriented paintings collection only begins with the Impressionists in the 1880's.

The 19th-ceotury American presence will in fact be a pervasive one this fall, since a show — "Three Hundred Years of American Art"—including many of the same artists will open Sept. I at the Whitney Museum of American Art. Selected from the American paintings col-lection of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Rockefeller 3d, it includes the work of Andrew Wyeth (who, incideotally, will also be the sole subject of a major Bicentennial show at the Metropolitan Museum of Art

Other Examples

"It's a question of who can get their Coles up first," quipped Tom Armstrong, director of the Whitney, when asked about the show at the Modern, a show that seems to some in the art world to be more of a Whit-oey-type than a MOMA-type of display. He jokingly specu-lated that the Modern's exhibitinn might be a play for the collection of Mr. and Mrs. Rockefeller, who are closely identified with the Modern (Mrs. Rockefeller is president of its board).

"Toilers of the Sea," by Albert Pinkham Ryder, is in Museum of Modern Art show

This brought a laugh from Richard Oldenburg the Modern's director. "No ooe would he more surprised than Mr. Rockefeller if we asked him for ooe of those 19th-century works," he said. The museum had oever coosidered showing the Rocke-feller collection, he said, "because of its focus on a particular aspect of 19th-century painting, whereas the whole purpose of our show is to use the past as a context for cootemporary work."

He weot oo to cite oumerous instances of shows outside of the Modern's time period mounted since its opening in 1929, including the work of Ryder, Eakins its department of architecture and design staged a and Homer (1930); the art of show of Beaux-Arts architecpre - Columbian America (1933); American folk art (1933); George Caleh Bingham (1935); Italian Masters such as Botticelli and Tiepolo (1940), and eveo "Romantic Painting in America" (1943), that included some of the same artists as those in the current show. The museum's last departure from "modern" painting was a 1966 exhibition of the er, the 19th-century British landscapist, although in another area, only last fall, ture of the 19th century. But Mr. Oldenburg said the closeness in time of the two shows in no way indicated a retreat from the contemporary. "We've always dipped into the past when we thought the art was relevant to art of our own time, and we'll continue to collect and exhibit recent work," he said, pointing out that early next year the museum would present a retrospective of the work of the contemporary artist Robert Rauschenberg, and that it exposed the work of current artists through its continuing series of "Projects" shows. "The Natural Paradise" show has been organized by Kynaston McShine, curator in the Modern's department of painting and sculpture, who heretofure has arranged such assistantial orbibilities. such avant-garde exhibitions at the museum as "Information" (1970) and "Marcel Duchamp" (1973-74) and who 1966 organized a plooeer

Minimal show, "Primary Structures," at the Jewish Museum.

The idea for the early American show had come to him some time ago, in response to the need of doing a Bicentennial exhibition, Mr. McShine said. As a curator and student of art hstory, he "a hreadth of interest," he added, and saw his job as that of presenting "different aspects of art to the public."

An Enhanced Perception

"The Museum is not only an international but also an American institution, and it can present aspects of American art that enhance our perception of certain contemporary developments," he added. "The point was not to do one more survey show. We felt it was a good idea to examine a great momeot of American art, Abstract Expressionism, and make cer-tain connections not made hefore, to examine it io an American cootext because it is so often seen in the Euro-pean terms of Kandinsky, Mondrian, Miro."

Pointing out that the "at-tempt of Mark Rothko and Barnett Newman to capture the sublime in painting was in the Romantic tradition," Mr. McShine added, "it seemed a good idea to show the Abstract - Expressionist work in the context of American romantic art."

The National Endowmeon for the Arts has given a grant of $75,000 toward the cost of the exhibition, which in-cludes some 150 works, including a number rarely seeo from institutions here and abroad. Mr. McShine has edited the catalogue (which will also be distributed as a book), containing contributions from the art historians Barbara Novak, John Wil-merdiog and Robert Rosen-

The series, which includes six other groups that are more established in dance, is taking place through Aug. 15 in the mall area of the City University Graduate Center 33 West 42d Street. The program's best pieces, even if they were sometimes less polished in their craftsmanship than the others, were those whose choreographers had something original to say.

For instance, Bill T. Jones and Carole Kariamn Welsh, two young black choreographers, created deeply felt works out of their persooal experience. Mr. Jooes, whose dramatic presence would as-sure him success as an actor, presented a powerful sold called "Everybody Works/All Beasts Count." The highly theatrical beginning showed stilts as a militant figure exhorting an unseen public with spellbioding, even disturbing effect. The contrast with the final section—an autobiographical passage in which has been accompanied to the contrast with the final section—an autobiographical passage in the contrast of the co which Mr. Jones offered a plea for brotherly love while spinning in place—built to-ward a humanist message that was presented with sophistication.

In "Coretta --- A Dance Dream," Miss Welsh used more conventional moderndance technique, but she was also astute in her dramatic structuring and patterns. The result was that the idea of mutual comfort as depicted around the figure of Coretta King, also perfectly illustrated the accompanying tapes of the pleas of the Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., her late husband, for the need for Americans to work toFred Mathews

Although "Pièce d'Occasion," hy Senta Driver was not a dance-drama, it, too, bore a strong personal stamp. Miss Driver's ouirky sense nf humor always colored this duet for Michaele Salade and Timothy Knowles. Back in the dramatic vein, "Clara's Lament, danced and created by Patty Shenker, offered a feminist statement about the self-sacrifice of the wife of the composer Robert Schumann. The movement was again conventional modern dance. But the emotional pro-gression from grief to kind of apotheosis was stroogly

The rest of the program offered works with a strange tone of anonymity about them, although Susan Dib-hle's "Sextet Foranna" with its apelike figures attempting to hreak away from the primordial slime, had possi-hilities. Fred Mathews offered "Auhade," a love duet, and Devon Wall offered another duet, "Sonata in G Major." There were two other solos: Cathryn Williams's "Amalgam" and Roo Paul'a "Striation."

By DON McDONAGH

NEW LONDON, Conn., July 11—Like choristers seizing solo opportunities, the Metropolitan Opera Ballet Ensemble has thrust itself forward from the mass of the larger opera ballet as an in-dependent concert group. It will continue to work in opera productions during the regular season but has sub-stantially increased its choreographic and perform-ing opportunities.

The company made its debut this last weekend at the American Dance Festival at Connecticut College with the widest possible selection of ballets. It was eclectic and all were not performed with equal assurance, hut the company's basic competence should help it overcome a somewhat tame attack.

The program encompassed hallet moods from romantic Fokine to razzmatazz Fosse prepared hy Norbert Vesak, the artistic director. His "Be-lnng," a duet danced by Ellen Rievman and Marcus Bugler, broke the somewhat polite mold of his other ballets and allowed its dancers to leap and writhe through a love step that had a healthy ele-ment of physical excitement. Mr. Bugler made a series of assured catches and support-ed Miss Rievman sensitively

The "Rich Man's Frug" from "Sweet Charity" was designed as the ohvious dessert portion of the program and functioned there very well. The decorous rock dancing of men in black tie and women io diamond collars had ao ohvious appeal, and Naomi Marritt as the lead celebrant was fliply appropriate. Her attendant males were slickly danced hy Marc Verzatt and Alastan Munro, and glamorous polish. The least successful piece

The least successful piece on the program was Fokine's "Le Carnaval," which is as insubstantial as the slightly raised eyebrow or the flicker of a smile that disappears before it outstays its welcome. It is, in short a ballet for performers of powerful perperformers of powerful per-sonal magnetism who make the most of very slight material. There is little of the spectacular hy way of tradi-tional school steps, and all is mood and tone, which change from moment to mo-ment, Frivolity with an un-dercurrent of cruelty bounds the world of the characters, and it is an exceptionally difficult world to present effec-

Mr. Vesak also presented two other works, "Die Fleder-maus Variations," which was essentially a swirl of waitzing couples, and "Once for the Birth Of." In it Mr. Munro played the cad to Suzanne Laurence's trusting innocent.

Nothing of great consequence occurred except a few passionate embraces that were exchanged for remorse-ful pleading. Though one ad-mired some of the dramatic accents, it was a relatively slight piece.

Looking ahead, the compa-ny has a world of choreography to choose from and has shown a willingness to try nearly anything, so that it shouldn't he too hard to shape programs that would show it to comfortable adventage in a variety of t Versia Done cast, it can also be said that the general level was high, and that is no mean accomplishment in a generally weak age of Wagner singing. Most of the principals were unfamiliar-at least to a New Yorker. A Danish baritone named Leif Roar provided a generally lyric and unforced if somewhat smallscaled Wotan. René Kolio was the admirable Loge, and Klaus Harte was a roughvoiced but menacing Alberich. Fasolt and Fafner were sung by Franz Krass and Karl Christian Kohn, respectively. Ruzia Baldani was the Fricka, Ortrun Wenkel the Erda, Gerhard Unger the Mime and Thomas Tiptoo the Donner. The trio of Rhinemaidens — Adrienne Csen-gery, Doris Linser and Liliana Nejtschewa-made more mellifluous noises than most comparable ensembles.

One of the evening's disappointments was the orchestra and conductor. There were intonation problems at the beginning, and the horns did not have a good night. Throughout the performance some of the playing sounded unexpectedly coarse. As for the conductor, he is experienced and knows every note of the score, but somehow did not infuse the evening with a high degree of personality.

Tonight's "Die Walküre" was not as successful as the "Rheingold." which was a much more consistent piece of work. Mr. Rennert's staging is in the neo-Bayreuth. style, and this leads to problems in "Die Walktire" that nobody has been able to

When everything is stripped down—and Mr. Ren-nert's conception has a first act with nothing but a virtually bare stage and a stylized tree-the singers are discussing things that have no relation to what is actually seen or going on.

For instance, the first scene in Hunding's house is supposed to have a fire. Modern stage managers loftly dismiss that as old-fashioned, with no relation to the Wagner mythos. Yet how is the sword io the tree to light up without a fire to do the lighting? As done tonight, the in-telligent sword obediently lit up on cue of its own accord. But it was kind of silly, just as Siegmund's costume in this production, a costume that makes him look like a beat-up scout for General

'Rheingold'Consistent, 'Walkure' Less So

Custer, is as unnatural as the pants worn by Wotan. Or take the second act. where problems also remain unsolved. It starts with a hare stage dominated by a stylized rock. When Siegmund and Sieglinda enter, a quick change of projections makes the rock and its surroundings look like a forest. That is a good and legitimate effect, but at Brünnhilde's appearance and the beginning of the "Todesverkundigung," the scene for oo apparent reason changes back to the rock. Then back to the forest again. Then the rock once more, where the battle takes place. In the meantime Siegfioda is sleeping, in full view, presumably in the same place. The whole thing is too busy and too inconsistent.

The only good thing about this particular scene is the treatment of Hunding. Most productions, going back to Bayreuth in 1876, treat him as some sort of loathsome nonentity. Mr. Rennert finds interesting things in the man. When he kills Siegmund and Wotan appears, Hunding is far more integrated than frightened. He peers this way and that and comes up to Wotan. What has he to be afraid of? By his lights he has done wrong. Thus when Wotan kills him with a look and a word, one feels sorry for poor Hunding.

Yipping Walkyries

The last act is the one consistent piece of work in this production, and it moves beautifully. The eight Walkyries move in interesting patterns, yipping merrily away and having a good time. The sky is a series of stylized, fast-moving clouds. At the Wotan-Brünnhilde confrontation, skillful lighting makes the rock of the Walkyries and island appear to be floating in space. Mr. Renoert stresses the humanity of the scene. These are not gods hot a sorrowing father and a heartbroken yet hopeful daughter waiting for an eventual future to open up for her.

The cast was full of experienced singers. James King as Siegmund and Ingrid Bjoener as Brünnhilde are known quantities. Both superb artists, they paced themselves well and acted convincingly. The work of Gwkyneth Jones as Sleglinde was less attractive. She was shrill, loud and edgy. This was singing peri-lously close to yelling.

Actor of Depth

Appearing the second night in a row, Mr. Roar handled himself very well. He is a real findan actor of depth and compassion, and a singer who has the range to accommodate to the difficult writing. His is not a hig voice, hut it does the job with style. Miss Baldani, also singing for the second night in a row, is a competent singing actress. Kurt Moll from the Hamburg Opera rounded out the list of principals. He sang a resonant Hunding, and his stage business included some bits of body motion that were amazingly effective. Presumably these stemmed from Mr. Rennert's direction. As in the "Rheingold" per-formance, Mr. Sawallisch's conducting was steady but not very imaginative. And in the "Ride of the Walkyries" he often let the orchestra get away with accenting the second beat of the measure. Wagner so carefully placed a great big accent on the first beat, but not many conductors pay attention to it.

People have been lulled into a false sense of security by thinking that the climate over the last 50 years has been normal, he says. In fact, he says, must of that perind was exceptionally warm and

"It hasn't been 'normal' like that since the year 1200, and my definition of 'nnrmal' is not something that happens 50 years out of every 800," he says. "In me, 'nnr-mal' is climate that is just

Continued from Page B1 attention to the climatolo-Cootending that the impact gists. In a working paper made public in May, the Cen-tral Intelligence Agency said many governments have tried to hide crop failures and nt such trends is immense.

he explains: "During stable times, plan-ners tend to inherit the earth. They can count on predictable weather and good crops year after year, allowing The paper recommended that them tn plan fnr welfare proa major intelligence effort be made to assess the effects of grams, wars nr whatever. Unstable times are hard climate changes on future times. Ynu see them throughout history. The rules change. The nthers become very hard to compromise with when their to men like Dr. Browning for bahies are starving. We have now entered one of those rough, tough periods."

Dr. Browning uses every-thing from space-program data to 18th-century French wice-growing records to arrive at his thenries. He also goes much further than other climatolngists in suggesting causes, establishing ages" between climate and bistory, and in projecting effects. Others link solar volcanic activity to climate shifts. Dr. Browning does too, but he also goes beyond

His basic theory is that changes in climate can be traced to physical causes, which include the gravita-tinnal pulls of nrbiting planets like Jupiter as well as solar activity. Orbital mechanics affect tidal forces, which, in turn, affect stresses m the earth's thin crust. These set nff earthquakes vnicanoes. Voicanoes spew huge amounts of dust and gases ioto the atmosphere, blocking out sunlight.

snlar activity in the early 1780's. In 1783, two large valcances erupted in Iceland and Japan.

The next year it snawed around Mexico City, causing crop failures and starvatinn, according to Dr. Browning. Tree rings and wice-grawing records document erratic weather in Europe nver the next several years. It hailed one summer across France. Fond there became scarce. In 1789, after somehody said, "Let them eat care," the French Revolution began.

Projections Doubted

History is filled with similar examples, says Dr. Browning. The Mnngnls, each time their lands in Central Asia dried up, marched sooth intn China. A climate shift resulted in drought in Lin-coln County, N.M., start-ing a range war as well as Billy the Kid's career.

But food company executives, commodity brokers, agriculture equipment makers. and others, dn not pay Dr. Browning $1,500 a day to dwell on history. They want to know what is going to happen next, and Dr. Brownlast few years is good enough to warrant their attention. they say. This is especially true because many nf them believe the United States Department nf Agriculture's crop projections have become politically taioted.

The Agriculture Department's track record over the last few years is kind no ridiculous," says Roger W. Spencer, a vice president and commodities analyst with Mitchell, Hutchins and Company, the brokerage firm.

SPECIAL EVENT . . . TREMENDOUS VALUES

His company sends Dr. Browning around the natinn regulariy to talk to clients about climate.

"Dr. Browning is useful to me for long-term projec-tions," said Mr. Spencer. "Why should some bureaucrat making Government estimates try to be a hero. He just takes snmething off some nice trend chart that won't get him into trouble. Dr. Browning's imput has kept me from goiog overbnard and falling for some of these wild government es-

One thing climatolngists are often asked is waat kind of climate is in store for the Soviet Union, this country's oewest large-scale graio buyer, Dr. Browning predicts

What happens, he explains, is that during cooling periods -like the nne going nn now —the average line of good climate and favorable grow-ing conditions in the oorthern hemisphere shifts southward. The Soviet grain belt is already in the southern part of that country. Sn when the good climate shifts snuth-

Soviet Union. The United States is far better off, Dr. Browning be-lieves. Unlike the Soviet Union, or any other country for that matter, the average line of good climate runs across the center of the country. If the Northern states get cooler and drier — as he projects they will—there is still plenty of land in the South to raise bnuntiful crops, he says.

But the current shift in cllmate will probably cause se-vere regional disruptions, he "Reginnal friction is golog to increase enormnusly," he says. "People in states producing raw products like fnod, fiber and fuel are nn longer little people, as they used to be when people in cities had all the power. They've got muscle of the nwn now and they see car markets io the rest of the world. There is on special virtue a Kansas wheat farmer can see in feeding a New Yorker over feeding a Russian—especially if the sian pays."

HARRISES TO TELL! ABOUT MISS HEARST

Couple on Trial Expected to Give Their Version of Activity With Her

By MARCIA CHAMBERS Special to The New York Times LOS ANGELES, July 11-

state jury may soon learn William and Emily Harris's version of the Patricia Hearst story.

With opening statements in their trial this week, the Harrises, survivors of a revolution-ary group that kidnapped Miss learst, are expected to accuse the young woman of instigating series of crimes for which they are now on trial Mrs. Harris will give one of the opening statements and according to her lawyer, will later take the witness stand.

From their jail cells last February, the Harrises; in a copyright article io the magazine New Times, disputed crucial aspects of Misa Hearst's testiin San Francisco. Soon the Har-rises may do ao again, but this time under oath.

Ime under oath.

If, in the process, the couple ahed oew light on the so-called missing year when they and Miss Hearst were fugitives underground, it is possible that this trial may reveal more about the so-called Symbionese Liberation Army and Miss Hearst's conversion to it than did the Hearst trial. did the Hearst trial.

Miss Hearst, a co-defendant in the Harris case who is awaitin the Harris case who is awaiting sentencing on her Federal bank robbery cooviction, is not on trial with the Harrises. In convicting her, Miss Hearst's Federal jurors disbelieved her testimooy that she was forced to commit criminal acts because she feared death at the hands of her abductors.

Miss Hearst admitted spraying bullets at Mel's Sporting Goods Store in nearby Ingle-wood to free the Harrises, who had been detained by store clerks as shoplifting suspects. Her action was automatic, she testified, born of coercioo but not commitment to the revolu-tionary army," which she oow says she never joioed.

"I just can't believe that I did what I did," Miss Hearst testified of firing first one and then another automatic weapoo at the store while alooe in a

The Harrises dispute this.
And their trial strategy, as it has emerged during the weeks of jury aelection, has two aims: to mitigate the extent of the crimes the state charges took place on May 16 and May 17, 1974, and to evoke the jury's sympathy.

The facts of May 16 and May 17, 1974, are not really in dispute. After Miss Hearst rescued her companioos, they quickly abandoned their van, leaving behind a parking ticket they oeglected to pay. From the parking ticket and a guo the store clerks wrested from Mr. Harris, police learned that the S. L. A. was in Los Angeles.

Within a day of the late-afternoon flight from the store, six other members of the revolutionary group died in a fierce gun battle with the Los Angeles police, who, apparently acting on a tip, found them hiding io a house io a black section of the city.

The Harrises and Miss Hearst escaped death because they were, by then, on the run, Armed and fearful of capture the three stole four cars and abducted the owners of two of them. Later the kidnapped victims were released unharmed. Then the three went to Anaheim, where, in a motel room, they turned on a televisioo set only to witness the live cover-age of the shootout and fire in which their friends perished Afterward, they disappeared underground, not to be seen again until they were arrested in San Francisco 16 months

From those two days of flight came three sets of felony charges: assault with a deadly weapon against five store em-ployees and a customer; armed theft of two automobiles, and the kidnapping of the owners of two other cars. The kidnap-ping victims were Thomas D. Mathews, then a high school student who wanted to sell his car, and Fraok R. Sutter, a general contractor who picked up two hitchhikers io the Holly-wood Hills only to discover that they were Miss Hearst and Mrs. Harris. All three defend-case and the facts are clearly on his side. But the charge of assault with a deadly weapoo, which applies to the Harrises, even though they never fired a shot, is always a difficult coocept for a jury to grasp.

Mr. Mayerson plans to argue any lookout or getaway driver operation.99 at a bank robbery, the Harrises ee Harrises were accomplises were accomplices to Miss Hearst'a shooting and, theredelay, she said, gave a store clerk the chance to place on Mr. Harris'a wrist, a handcuff, which the group found hard to

To prove the accomplice theory, the state iotends to show that the Harrises and Miss Hearst worked together in their activities of flight, robbery and abduction over the 24-

He understood, too, the South's fierce pride, and he calculated correctly that if he could show that he had a real chance to be elected President, Southeroers of hoth races and many viewpoints would rally to him.

Of the first 1.505 delegate votes he accumulated, assuring him of nomination, more than a quarter came from the South. That he is favored to win the Presidency in November results in no small degree from the fact that the South could provide a third of the elec-toral votes he needs.

The Strategy

Jimmy Carter's grand strategy was made possible by his God-giveo energy; hy his self-discipline, a legacy from his years as a submarine officer; hy the acome from his farm, which made him financially independent, and by his departure from public office, which gave him free time.

Unlike most of his rivals, who ran only in the states where they considered themselves strongest, he decided to run everywhere, in states where his opponents were active and in states where they were not. He would wio enough victories to establish his credibility (or, in the vogue word of 1976, to geocrate 'momentum'). But he would also pick up some delegates even in states where someone else got the majority.

And so it came to be. Unit rules and winner-take-all primaries had heen relegated to the Democratic past, and Mr. Carter gained delegates in California, despite a trouncing by Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr.; in Alabama, Mr. Wallace's nome territory; in almois, where his opponents feared to tread; in New York and Massachusetts, where he finished well back in the pack

How to Watch The Convention

OLLOWING is a brief guide to help increase the observer's understanding of the proceedings at the Democratic National Convention this week. The keynote speech is tonight. The speakers are Senator John H. Glenn Jr. of Ohio and Renentative Barbara Jordan of Texas. Miss Jordan will be more fun listen to - she is one of the party's truly accomplished orators but Mr. Glenn is the one to watch carefully. He wants to be Vice-Presidential candidate, and a rousing reception could belp. The platform will be presented on Tuesday night. In an effort ransform a dull ritual into something exciting, an all-star cast been lined up. It should be particularly fascinating to see Gov. irge C. Wallace of Alabama, the quintessential outsider, read perhaps comment upon the majority plank on "government orm and business accountability" — a subject dear to heart of

The Presidential candidate will be nominated on Wednesday it. Except for those who revel in the brass bands and waving and sof nonspontaneous demonstrations, the chief interest will in how many votes the bitter-enders-Gov. Edmund G. Brown of California, Representative Morris K. Udall of Arizona and n McCormack, the anti-abortion candidate from Loog Island hold back from Mr. Carter.

The maneuvering and speculation about a Vice-Presidential building to a climax Wednesday or Thursday. Much of the indidate will take place off the convention floor, beginning today information veoded by politicians and commentators will be thless, but Mr. Carter is likely to let some clues emerge by time he is nominated.

The final session is Thursday. It is conceivable hut highly unly that someone will challenge Mr. Carter's Vice-Presidential tice, so the main interest—and perhaps the only real squabhle he convention—will come in the afternoon, when the rules for the neeting are debated. The convention will conclude with Mr. ter's address, which the party faithful hope to hear in prime vision time, not after midnight like George McGovern's speech our years ago.

Will Mr. Brown join the festival of party harmony, or will he: is individualistic and unconventional way, hold out? Watch what California delegation does when the inevitable motion to declare Carter nominated by acclamation is made at the end of the call. What Mr. Brown decides could affect his Presidential nces in 1980 or 1984. Politicians do not like spoilers, as Vice sident Rockefeller learned in the years following 1960.

Finally, there is the one broad question: Will Mr. Carter succeed is careful plans to do everything in such a way as to guarantee the Democrats emerge from the convention united, ready to le the Republicans?

If appears that he will if he does, rallying the tractious bemos behind his single banner for the first time in a dozen years, will be only slightly less miraculous than his own nomination.

EN CHARLOTTE CURTIS

Jimmy Carter knows who Mary Lasker is, and he has met Andy Warhol, Geral-dine Fitzgerald, Halston, the W. Averell Harrimans, the Robert Wagners and the Edgar Bronfmans, and they're all going to be around for the Democratic National Coovention, So is Shirley MacLaine.

"Why do you think I'm playing the Palace?" the chullent Miss MatLaine asked. "I wanted to be in town when the convention is here. I think it's a natural extension of the Fourth of July —the rockets' red glare and all that." Gillian Sorensen, whose husband was a Kennedy speechwriter, is a Carter delegate ready and waiting to cast her half vote Patricia Kennedy Lawford has convention tickets. And Norman Mailer, writing furiously at his Massachusetts summer home, wasn't sure he could stay

"I might come in for a day," Mr. Mailer said. "The coovention may pull me away from my work. It would be better for my novel if it didn't."

Others were being pulled away in drives the festive air the convention generated. There were parties all over town, but as Jimmy Carter's almost inevitable nomination drew closer, most New York politicians found themselves untovited guests at their own Madleon Square Garden party.

New York Democrats backed Repre-sentative Morris K. Udali or Senator Henry M. Jacksoo in the primaries, or waited for Senator Hubert H. Humphrey to make his move.

When Mr. Carter trounced his rivals and began to look as if he might well be the next President of the United States, they switched their allegiance (in some cases, reluctantly) and wrote their $1,000 checks (Mrs. Lasker had hers hand-delivered) and flocked to the hast of the Carter fund-raisers. Suddenly, they were hospitable to his before-New Hampshire supporters. "Who do you know who can introduce ruhbing elbows with such $100-a-menth-me?" they asked "What can I do to and-up cootributors as Clark Clifford,

For most, it was too late. Since the fund-raising ends the moment Mr. Carter becomes the cominee and individuals may give only $1,000 to any one candidate, there was no way to impress Georgia's peanut brigade.

Neither the offer of a party nor a huge campaign cootribution mattered, The day of the fat cat and the $350,000 ambassadorship was gone. They had lost the chance to show off the candidate in their 18th-century French drawing here is an "eerie tranquillity" in the locratic party this week. It means so much that old antagonisms have in the choice of Jimmy Carter, that the old antagonists of 1968 1972 were all about evenly out of running in presideotial politics last the other hand, the rise of Jimmy er and the new classic model of charismatic individual politics—the tri-umph of one man with confidence and a few stalwart helpers—seems to mark a collapse of the party boods end party influence io the making of Presidents.

Party leaders, party issues, party connections—even the party name that Mr. Carter rarely mentioned in his travelshad little to do with his emergence, And in an era when Mr. Carter's fece alone on the television screen is probably the most important campaign tool, when the United States Treasury provides all the money he can spend for his fall campaign, the faded power of party may have little to do with his future.

Implausibility is one mark of prominence within tha huge Democratic chorus singing hosannas for Jimmy Carter this week.

Among the most permanent and most implausible participants in the unity ritual will predictably be Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama, whose 12-year insurgency Mr. Carter demolished in its Southern lair; Senator George S. McGovern of South Dakota, ceptain of the Democrats' etrophied left wing, who swallowed his owo reservations about Jimmy Carter and dismissed bitter-end anti-Carterites on his own staff: Senator Hubert H. Humphrey of Minnesota, an almost-candidate this yeer, the embodiment of the party's old cen-ter of gravity that Mr. Carter effectively ran against; and Senator Edward M. Kennedy of Massachusetts, for whom the Carter ascendancy means at least more waiting to be President and perhaps the close of the Kennedy era in the mind and mythology of the Democratic

Most Democratic mayors, governors, Senate and House members, labor leaders, party intellectuals and longtime contributors spent the early months of 1976 watching the Carter haodwagon roll over and around them. Little noted adjustments in convention rules have helped to multiply the number of familiar Democratic faces on the floor of the corventien in Madison Square Garden, exaggerating the picture of an inclusive party clambake, com-pared with the Democratic convection of 1972, After George McGovern's antiwar "reformers" beat scores of well-known but uncommitted "regulars" out of delegate seats at the 1972 convention, the party approved new rules providing that up to one-fourth of each state's delegation this year could be named at-large hy local leaders. Further, the new rules give nonvoting delegate status and automatic floor privileges to every governor. United States Senator and Representative in the party.

Accordingly, the New York convention

Deleware and Representative Andrew Young of Atlanta were Mr. Certer's only carly Congressionel backers.

If it had required an early commitment to Mr. Carter to become a convention delegate this week, many of the best-known faces io the Democratic Party would not be here. Conversely, if the party leaders now preparing to cheer his nomination were making the choice on their own, Mr. Carter might still not be the Democratic nominee.

Only a few weeks ago it seemed that most elected Democrats and party officials were plotting to stop Mr. Carter's state-by-state progress, Their final bope was a deadlocked and "brokered" convention that would have let Mr. Carter. or any other nominee, know just where power in the party came from.

Such unlikely allies as Wallace, Daley, McGovern, Humphrey and Kennedy join in singing hosannas to Carter will not look quite so openly like an exclusive gathering of upstarts and "straogers," as the McGovern convention in Miami Beach seemed to many television viewers. The difference, however, is largely cosmetic: In fact, the early momentum of Mr. Carter's nominetion was built around a ootably smaller and less widely familiar core of irregulars than Mr. McGovern's was. Outside Georgia, oot a single governor endorsed Mr. Carter before the local primaries or delegate-selecting coucuses got started. Senator Joseph Biden of The question of which came first—Mr. Carter's "ioevitability" or the collapse of the resistance to him—is one of the riddles that Democrats may be arguing for a long time.

In either event, the fight was all hut over on June 8, the day Mr. Carter woo the Ohio primary that Mayor Deley de-clared would be definitive. It hardly seemed to metter, in most readings of the last primaries, that in California on the same Tuesday in June, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. was winning his sixth straight primary against Mr. Carter, and the largest plurality (1.6 million votes) ever recorded in a single contested Presidential primary.

What mattered, in terms of Mr. Carter's curiously unencumbered relationship with the Democratic power structure, was that he suddenly had the nomination virtually assured hefore the party in conventioo could claim to have conferred the nomination on him. Incumbent Presidents excepted, no caodidate has accomplished that feat before.

If he had oot exactly united the party by then, Mr. Carter seemed at least to have convinced such key leaders as Mayor Daley that no alternative nominee stood as good a chance as he to beat the Republicans in November.

Mark Shields, a liberal who thought the infighting against Mr. Carter stopped too soon, said in retrospect last week: "What I really underestimated this year was the consuming desire of Democratic activists to win the White House. A lot more people than I imagined must have law partners they want to stash away in the Interstate Commerce Commission

Not all the bandwagon-jumping was that cynical, but iodeed, most of Mr. Shields' one-time comrades in the liberal hattles of 1968 and 1972 had lost interest in the old issues and had lost their love of civil war in the party.

Lowered Expectations

They had also reduced their emotional investment and lowered their expectations of Democratic politicians.

No one expressed their changed mood more succinctly thao Anoe Wexler Duffey, who had entered national politics in zealous support of then Senator Eu-geoe J. McCarthy's actiwar challenge to their fellow Democrat, President Johnson, in 1968.

Reflecting in mid-April on the stakes in the party race this year, Mrs. Duffey said: "It's a race between Humphrey and Carter. That's the decision people are trying to make, and basically in terms of beating President Ford. Jimmy Carter may have a better chance of beating Gerald Ford than anybody else, and I don't think that's a bad reason to be for him."

Two months later, Mrs. Duffey was representing the Carter campaign on the Democratic Rules Committee. Oo the right wing of the party, the Wallaceites, who in enother year might have holted to an independent ticket, heve looked equally tired of the fray and appear to be eager to settle for some share in the Carter Presidency.

For converts left and right, it has helped that Mr. Carter's finely calibrated positions on the issues put him dead center in the party and in public opinion. But the old issue firebrands are marching to his drumbeat now, and he has oot changed it receotly to accommodate them.

Fewer 'Hooks'

"Jimmy Carter goes into the fall elec-tion with fewer 'hooks' into him than any nominee in modern times-probably in all times," says Prof. Walter Dean Burnham, a widely read student of party politics et the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. An early prophet of a Carter commation and a tentative enthusiast on the subject of Mr. Carter himself, Professor Burnham sounds like many an old-line Democrat wheo he la-ments Mr. Carter's oblivious distance from the party tradition.

"This is personalistic politics under thin party label—blank-check politics with an individual who is still not very well knowo," Mr. Burnham commented oo the eve of the convention, Mr. Carter "completely hypassed the old Democratic structure," the professor added. "He is about to be 'the Democratic nominee." hut the phrase means anything he makes it mean."

Changing U.S. Mood Vorries Democrats

By JAMES RESTON

Democrats bave come to New in a jovial mood, but they're a worried about the changing mood ie country and not quite as confior cheerful as they sound. All trends and computers are going with them. The popular-ity polls favor the Demo-cratic front-runner, former

Gov. Jimmy Carter of "alysis Georgia, by a substantial margin over either Presi-Ford or former Gov. Ronald Rea-California. is whether his brilliant political tactics of the primary elections and the philosophical speeches of his state campaigns will touch the mood of the nation in the coming mooths. His primary record in the South and in the border states was much better than his record in the critical populons electoral states of the North, so even his enthusiastic supporters io Madison Square Garden are wondering how he will do when he accepts the nomination and speaks as a potential President to the natioo and the world.

He has many things going for him that seem to coincide with the spirit and longings of the nation. He is much younger and more eoergetic than Mr. Ford and Mr. Reagan, who are approaching or have passed their middle sixties. He is a modern symbol of the New South, and after the long divisions since Appomatox, a potential reconciler of the old real and imagined wars between the states. But even on the eve of the convention, Mr. Carter is still a

Waiting to See

Something holds them back as they gather here on Seventh Avenue in the circular glass Garden over the big railroad station. He has their votes, but oot quite their hearts. They are waiting to see what kind of Vice President he will choose—the best for bim politically or the best potential President for the nation?-and whether he speaks to the mood of the nation when he accepts his party's comination.

For the first time in his nomination speech, Governor Carter will be facing world audience. Io the days before the primary elections, he was touring the country like a traveling salesman, making his pitch to very small audiences. During the primary elections, he was preoccupied with the tactics and strategy of state politics, gradually becoming a national figure with the considerable assistance of the caricaturists.

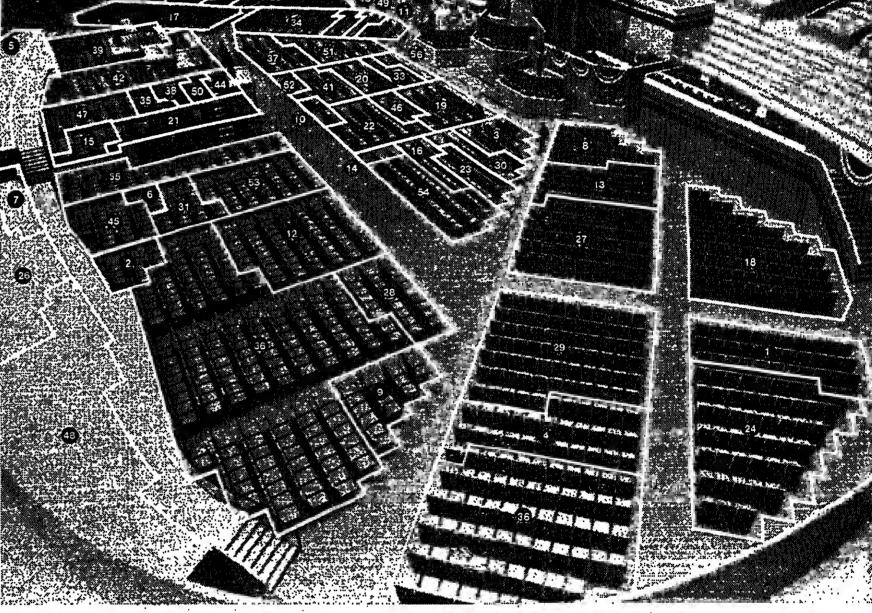

His opponents in the primaries have been Gov. George C. Wallace and Senator Henry M. Jackson on the right, Representative Morris K. Udall of the left, Senator Hubert H. Humphrey in the wings, and a lot of others on the side. He has defeated all of them, but now he has to face President Ford or Ronald Reagan and address the larger challenge of the Presidency and the world.

This may oot be as easy as the jubilant Democrats gathering here in New York think Jimmy Carter is obviously the political rookie of the year, but he is vulnerable to the charge that he knows very little about foreign affairs at a critical time in the transition of political power in China, the Soviet Union, Japan, the Philippines, Europe and the Middle East.

Vulnerable to Ridicule

Also, he is vulnerable to political ridicule—so moral and yet so cunning new inexperienced candidate running on the conservative, anti-Washington themes of the Republican Party. Mr. Reagan he could probably bandle. But Mr. Ford, campaigning from the high road of the White House, and former Gov. John B, Connaily of Texas-probably the best campaigner of all of them attacking Mr. Carter on the low road in Texas, California Florida and elsewhere, could turn this election into a much closer contest than it now seems. Everything could depend, then, on how Governor Carter acts and speaks in these next few days when he picks a running mate and addresses the nation. If he speaks to the mood and longings of the people, and picks a Vice President who is seen as a potential President if he falters, the chances are that he will hold his lead and win in November. But if be picks an amiable dub as his running mate, and misjudges the mood of the voters on nominating night, he could be in serious trouble. Even his most enthusiastic supporters, let alone his defeated and reluctant

What you will see when the television cameras point close-up at the podium will be a speaker alone in front of a pale blue screen-its lightness varied to complement the speaker's clothingand, when the cameras pan back, a darker blue screen as a backdrop.

"So head on," said Mr. Hertler, "it'a a clean shot."

He peered through a pencil-like periscope at a tabletop model of the Garden's interior. Such glimpses helped the designers visualize the image that the life-sized construction is supposed to project when the real cameras are

In that up-front area where, in past conventions, politicians dozed, parades formed, banners waved and confusion reigned, there is a decorous little feoce between the podium and delegate seats, and very little room. People will be discouraged from crowding in there. # Fewer Minority Delegates representation of women, minorities and young people among the delegates who will cast 3,008 votes at Democratic National vention in Madison Convention in Madison Square Garden will be slight-ly smaller than at the party's convention four years ago in Mlami Beach.

Groups representing wom-en and blacks and others have protested the decline and are proposing rule changes to increase their representation at future conventions. But some Democratic leaders maintain that the percentages of women, mioorities and young people this year will be substantially higher than at conventions before 1972 and that the 1976 delegates have been chosen this year at primary elections and caucuses without the quota system that was in effect four years ago.

Strauss Hails Change

"Unlike the figures manifest in the composition of the 1972 delegations, the compo-sition of our 1976 delegations bas been achieved not by quotas after the fact, but rather by genuine participa-tion in the delegate-selection process of our party." Robert S. Strauss, the Democratic national chairman, said last

A preliminary report last week on the first 25 states to complete their delegate selection—representing near-ly 43 percent of the full con-vention membership—showed when the following:

Women constituted 34.3 percent of the delegates, compared with 38 percent of all delegates in 1972; blacks made up 10.6 percent of the 25 delegations, compared with 15 percent of all delegations four years ago, and per-soos 30 years old or younger constituted 14.8 perceot, compared with 21 percent in 1972.

Mr. Strauss has said that these percentages should increase as more results of the delegate selection process are tabulated. A separate study by the Joint Center for Political Studies, a Washington organization that does research in political participation, found that 33 states, including New York, will have fewer black delegates at the Democratic convention this year than they did four years ago, while seven states—Illionis, Maryland, Michigan, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas and West Virginia — will have more black delegates.

Nonetheless, the delega-tions this year will generally be far more diverse than those at conventions before 1972, when the party faithful and officeholders tended to dominate many delegations.

1968 Percentages

At the tumultuous Democratic convention in Chicago in 1968, for example, only 13 percent of the delegates were womeo, 5.5 percent black womeo, 5.5 percent black and 4 percent young people. The diversity will be seen in the heads of the various delegations. Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago, who was denied a seat in a credentials challenge in 1972, will head the tllinois delegation. Lieut. Gov. Mary Aon Krupsak and Mayor Beame will be colleaders of the New 1982 of th will be co-leaders of the New York delegation. Senator Harrison A. Williams Jr. will be chairman of the New Jersey delegation.

But Lucille M. Kelley, who ruos an advertisiog agency, will head the New Hampshire delegation. Christine Gitlin. an assistant to Representa-tive Ronald M. Mottl, will be chairman of the Ohio delegation, although her employer, a freshman Democrat, will not be attending the conven-

Democratic senators and representatives will, as a courtesy, be given access to the convection. But, most delegates had to run for the post in a primary or caucus rather than being appointed, relatively few members of Congress will be delegates.

The Speaker of the House.
Carl Albert, who is retiring. is a delegate from Oklahoma. but the Senate majority leader, Mike Mansfield of Mootana, who also is retiriog, will not be a delegate and may not even attend, according to an aide.

The Bayb Delegate

Representative Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. of Massachusetts, the House majority leader who is expected to be elected Speaker of the House io January, will not be a dele-gate but will attend. His son, Lieut, Gov, Thomas P. O'Neill 3d, was elected as the only delegate from Massachusetts committed to Senator Birch Bayh of Indiana.

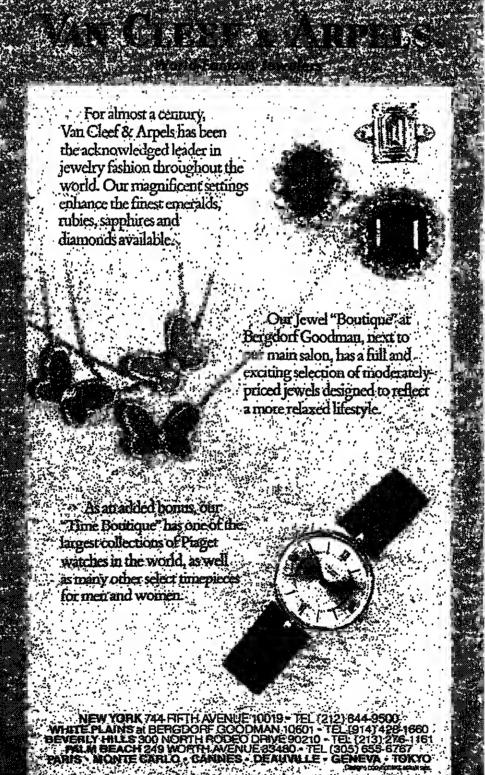

At least three others
—Senator Philip A. Hart of Michigan and Representatives William L. Hungate of Missouri and Joe L. Evins of Tennessea will be delegates Missouri and Joe L. Evins of Tennessee—will be delegates but will be retiring when their Congressional terms expire at the end of this year.

Arizona will have one of the youngest delegations. A newspaper survey found that the average age of the state's delegation was 38.6 years, with 16 of the 25 delegates 30 years old or younger. The Rev. Martin Luther King Sr., father of the slain civil rights leader, and Walt Bellamy, a former profession-al basketball player, will be among the Georgia delegates.

In addition to delegations from each of the 50 states, plus the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, the Panama Caoal Zone, Guam and the Virgin Islands, there will be for the first time a delegation with three votes representing Democrats living overseas.

The delegation, known as Democrats living abroad and headed by Anthony Hyde, who lives in London, was chosen by a worldwide mail

A Rare Debate, on Rules

By WARREN WEAVER Jr.

About the only controversy likely to roil the placid surface of the Democratic National Convention this week will come when the delegates debate a series of proposed rule changes affecting con-ventions, elections and party

While the Credentials Committee settled all contests for convention seats without a single minority report and the Platform Committee only produced one minority report, reformers on the Rules Committee mustered sufficient dissent to get eight disputes onto the conrention floor.

Probably the most controversial of these would require that half of the delegates from each state at the 1980 Democratic convention be women. Instead, the Rules Committee approved lan-guage that the convention call "shall promote an equal division" between men and women delegates.

In recent days, representa-tives of womens' groups, Jimmy Carter's staff and the Democratic National Committee have held repeated meet-ings to produce a compro-mise that would keep the dimise that would keep the divisive issue off the floor, rather than making it a feature of the convention.

Representatives of Mr. Carter, the prospective nominee, had opposed the mandatory equality language in committee, and it appeared unlikely that a sympathetic convention would reverse this position But, to avoid even the tion. But, to avoid even the appearance of dissension, the Carter forces reached tenta-

Carter forces reached tentative agreement on a recommendation to place more women on key reform units, rather than insisting on full numerical equality in 1980.
The convention was already scheduled to ratify a new proposal unanimously approved by the Rules Committee that strengthens the party machinery for encouraging greater representation aging greater representation of women, blacks, Indians and young people at future

The plan would require the national and state parties to set. "specific goals and timetables" for achieving delegate representation for these groups proportional to their respective shares of the state's Democratic vote.

Such a goal would not be a quota, sponsors of the plan contend, because failure to reach it within the timetable would not be grounds for the 1980 convention to refuse to seat the delegation as long as a good-faith effort to reach the goal was demonstrated. Also coming before the convention will be three attempts to make it easier for vocal minorities within the party to raise issues on the convention floor. A major reason that the 1976 conven-tion has few debates sched-uled is a new rule requiring a 25 percent vote in committee to get a minority report onto the floor.

This change, an increase from 10 percent, was achieved last October by Robert S. Strauss, the Demo-cratic national chairman, in an effort to reduce the con-tentious debate that characterized the party's 1968 and 1972 conventions, delaying their major events far into the night.

Torrorrow, the convention will vote on two proposed rule changes in this area that would go into effect immediately. One would remstate the 10 percent requirement for minority reports, and the other would permit floor debate and voting on a plat-form plank if 300 delegates from 10 states or more signed a petition.

On Thursday, when the convention takes up rule changes effective after 1976, the delegates will be asked to reduce the requirement for getting an issue to the convention floor in 1980 from 25 percent to 15 percent of the members of the committee involved, a compromise that may attract more

Also scheduled to reach the coovention floor on Thursday is a controversy over delegate selection plans that will be used in 1980. The party has aholished "winner-take-all" primaries at the state level, those under which a Presidential candidate won all the delegates of a given state, even if his percentage of the vote was only 1 point higher than that of his nearest contender.

ment for proportional divi-sion of delegates among candidates based on their share of the primary vote, the party's rules in effect this year permitted a candidate who carried a Congressional district to get all of its delegates and the runner-up none, a situation criticized as a loophole by some reformers.

The Rules Committee, meeting in Washington three weeks ago, voted to refer this problem to the party's Commission on Presidential Primaries, headed by Moriey Winograd, the Michigan state chairman and instructed that chairman, and instructed that group to eliminate winnertake all systems at all levels of the delegate-selection

Minority Report Filed ...

With that proposal clearing the committee by an almost invisible margin of 58½ to 58¼, it was hardly surprising that a minority report was filed, proposing that the Winograd commission be free to make any sort of recommendation it chose on the issue.

The convention will also be called on to decide how deepby the affirmative action program, designed to bring more women, young people and members of minorities into party activities, should be applied.

The rules now call for introducing affirmative action from "the lowest level" of Democratic affairs up through the national party. A minority report scheduled for debate and a vote on Thursday would free party committees and conventions operating below the state level from even this voluntary effort to achieve broader representation.

"Second-Rate Men"

In 1804, the 12th Amendment was ratified. According to the Encyclopedia Americana, which is not noted for nattering negativism, "The amendment, by requiring the electors to ballot separate-ly for the offices (of President and Vice President), drew to the Vice Presidency second-rate men who were nominated to balance the ticket geographically, nr to satisfy a minority faction within the

Although Tyler prevailed, it was ont until 1967, with the ratification of the 25th Ameodment, that Tyler's interpretation was legally confirmed.

'He Can't Make Speeches'

In 1881, when James A. Garfield was assassinated by an unbalanced office-seeker, Chester Arthur became President. Only two years before he succeed-ed to the Presidency, Arthur had heen removed from his lucrative post as customs collector of the Port of New York nn the ground that be was unfit for office. According to Donald Ynung, a historian. Arthur was not that had a President. But the Republicans failed to nominate him in 1884, and when be died two years later, his obituary in The New York World dwelt on the former President's prowess as a salmon fisher-

But the Vice Presidency, for all the ablaquy in which it is generally held, has also produced same of our greatest Presidents. Theodore Roosevelt succeeded William McKinley after McKinley's assassination in 1901, and was the first former Vice President to be elected President in his own right.

Calvin Coolidge, who succeeded War-ren G. Harding in 1923, was also later elected on his own, but did little for the reputation of Vice Presidents. But Harry S. Truman, whn succeeded Frank-lin D. Richard M. Nixon is one of only four Vice Presidents elected to the Presidency without first having succeeded to the office. The others are John Adams, Jefferson, and Martin Van Buren.

Most Vice Presidents seem to have felt, as John Nance Garner of Texas, the first of Franklin Roosevelt's three Vice Presidents, so pithily put it that the Vice Presidency "isn't worth a pitch-er of warm spit." But Joho Adams once said of the office. "In this I am nothing, but I may be everything."

Tradition Is Hardy

Since the ratification of the 12th Amendment, the tradition of choosing Vice-Presidential candidates for geographical and ideological balance has been firmly set. Efforts to buck the tradition bave not had felicitous results.

In 1964, Secator Barry Goldwater, having taken the conservative high ground in winning the Republican Presideotial nomination, could not afford to appear to be waffling by taking a moderate or liberal running mate. So he chose an obscure but conservative New York Representative, William E. Miller, who oow makes television commercials capitalizing on his obscurity. In 1956, wheo Adlai E. Stevensoo left the chaice of the Vice Presidential nomi-nee up to the convention delegates, the whole place turned into a zoo, rife with bloody political maneuverings.

Twelve years later, the Republicans produced one of the mure unexpected choices of receot times as Mr. Nixon selected a man theo known as Spiro T. Whn? Mr. Agnew was oot on anyone's list of likely Vice Presidents that year except Mr. Nixon's. He went on to contribute pungent observations an slums and elitists to the national lore before pleading no cootest an a felony charge and resigning.

Senator George McGovern, in the rush to select a presentable candidate in 1972, further weakened his doomed candidacy by choosing Senator Thomas F. Eagleton of Missouri, who withdrew as the nominee after confirming reports that he had undergone electroshack treatment for mental depression in the 1960's.

This year, the Repoblicans are talking wistfully about a Ford-Reagan ticket, the ultimate unity team. But all that the Republicans or the Democrats really aeed is someone who will appeal to whites, hlacks, Hispanics, Indians, men, women, liberals, conservatives, Italians, Poles, younger voters, older voters churchgoers, hommsexuals and David Shapiro of Austin, Tex., who doesn't ap-

New York, on the other hand, gives a Democrat a refuses to face the facts. Nothing irks a Democrat more than refusal to face the facts. In Washington, he faces the facts year after year. Everybody faces the in Washington, which takes courage because the facts they have to face down there are hard and unpleas-

All day loog, Democrats roam Washington with long faces, telling one another they have to face the hard, unpleasant facts. This is what has put iron in their soul and lead in the Treasury. When a Democrat comes to New York and says, "Let's face the hard, unpleasant facts," the New Yorker says,

What else can a New Yorker say? Any New Yorker who really faced the facts would move out of town before sundown and would not be a

New Yorker any more. When a New Yorker's facts, he rushes to a restan-rant, orders a $50 dinner and pays with a credit card.

Democrats, with their fact-facing Washington realism, are more mature. When there is the slightest fact to be faced, they sit down to a sumptuous feed in the Senate dining room or the brass's dining room at the Pentagon and send the bill to the tax

This is called fiscal responsibility, and it is one of the reasons. Democrats believe, that Washington is now the world's No. I hig town, while New York is just the prov-

Small-Town Chauvinism New Yorkers laugh a lot when they hear talk like this, and ask what you can expect of Democrats. The idea that any town with only three theaters, six restaurants, a two-night opera season and four pedestrians downtown after office hours could call

The Democrats have occupied Washington for 43 years, and now, several thonsands hillion dollars later, they can honestly boast that, like Caesar Augustus, they found a capital of marble and left it a monumental to civil-ization — except that they haven't left it yet, and aren't planning to.

They don't think the job has been finished. New York still has troublesome claims to being the big town, which interfere with Washington's right to hold the title undis-

But what can you expect You have to understand that the Democrats New

With government in America becoming more important than everything else put to-gether, Washington looks like a cinch to win over New York in the long run.

At the momeot, however, the competition is suspended while Washington comes to New York to get his Demo-crats re-elected.

To anyone who has lived in both cities and loved each in its fashion, the occasion looks like a meeting of titans. Americans who are less in-volved might say "Franken-stein meets the Wolf Man."

How Carter Ran in the Primaries

Jimmy Carter ran in all hut one of the 27 Presidentialpreference primaries this year and won 39 percent of the vote—far more than any other Democratic candidate.

According to figures released by Congressional Quarterly, the former Georgia Governor fiolshed first in 17 primaries, second in eight and fourth in one state— Massachusetts. He received 6,206,980 votes, far more than the runner-up, Gov. Edmund G. Brown Jr. of Cali-

Mr. Brown, who was on the ballot in only three states —in Maryland, Nevada and California —finished first in all three. He also was third in Oregoo, where he was a write-in candidate. His total national vote was 2,414,595. or 15.2 percent.

Gov. George C. Wallace

was the third highest yotegetter in the Democratic preference primaries, with 1,994,689 votes, or 12.5 per-cent. He was on the ballot in 24 preference primaries but did not win in any; he finished second in nine and third in four others.

Representative Morris K. Udall of Arizona, who was on the ballot in 22 preference primaries, ran fourth in the national vote among Democratic candidates, receiving 1,601,763 votes, or 10.1 per-cent. He did not finish first in any of the primaries, but was second io seven of them, and third in six others.

Clad in denims and barefoot, Jimmy Carter worked on his acceptance speech late Friday night at his home in Plains, Ga.

He seldom talked about those episodes in overt terms; instead, he talked about trust, bonesty, anti-elitism, the family and his own background as a noo-Washington non-lawyer. Charles Morgan Jr., the Alabama liberal who came North to head the Washington office of the American Civil Liberties Union, heard the code words a couple of times and de-clared, "You're listening to the candidate of the Water-gate backlash."

The Psychology

Had Jimmy Carter arrived at the end of the primary sea-son in another year, as be did this year, still 200 or 300 votes

When the moment came oo the night of June 8, for the last pieces to fall into place, they fell. George Wal-lace rallied around, his face saved, io a gesture of Southern solidarity. Richard J. Daley, the Mayor of Chicago, eager to return to his role as a kingmaker after his ex-clusioo at Miami Beach in 1972, remembered small ges-tures of respect and added his voice to the chorus. Henry Jackson, irked by Mr. Humphrey's tactics and vaguely respectful of what Mr. Carter had wrought, saw no reason to resist.

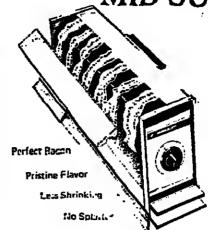

It all seemed oatural and foreordained, but it was not. Had Mr. Carter made the mistake of crowing over each victory or attempting to humble his adversaries, ha might have found himself in the positioo occupied by Mr. McGovern four years ago, forced to scramble for every last delegate on the floor of the convention itself.

Jimmy Carter came to New York on Saturday without the oeed to do that. He came rested and confident, and whatever else may happen in this astonishing election year, be thereby gave the Democrats a leg up toward Feminist Betty Friedan, on the other hand, met most of her friends with a resigned sigh and a question. "How can we have a candidate for President whom nobody feels he knows?" Nobody had much of an answer. Uptown at the Waldorf, Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago had a whole floor to himself, while Jack Valenti, president of the Motion Picture Association, didn't

"We've always been more political than social," former Mayor Wagner explained. "Our constituency is more diverse. About the only time I remember much real socializing was when Franklin Roosevelt was President, and maybe that was because the nomination was a foregone conclusion."

With Mr. Carter all but officially anointed, the nomination at this convention is a foregone conclusion, too. Yet, neither the Carter forces nor the Democratic National Committee wants anyone distracted from convention

New York Polishes Its Image

By FRED FERRETTI

"The image we project will be very important, because for the few days of the convention, not only the country but the world will focus oo New York City."

So says Abraham D. Beame, Mayor of New York, co-chairman of his state's delegation to the Democratic National Convention and perhaps the man most coo-cerned with his city's image —tarnished in the last 18 months by its near financial default and by national perceptioos that it is a playground for muggers, robbers and streetwalkers.

So what the Mayor and his Depoty Mayor, Staoley Friedman who is in charge of seeing to the comforts of those coming bere for the coovention—hope will hap-pen is that delegates and their families, after a week of pampering and personal service, will change their minds about the city, or "at least begin to change their according to Mr. Friedman

An Array of Services

With this in mind, the city is laying on a bewildering array of services for dele-gates and their families special transit passes, tour and cruise rates, universal museum passes, special transportation to and from the airports and buses from botels to Madisoo Square Garden, discount parking, parties, reserved tickets to Broadway hits, a corps of special bosts and hostesses so that "everybody, every delegate and his or her spouse, will be a V.I.P. from the time he gets bere until he leaves," says Deputy Mayor Friedman. "We mean to see to that."

Bot the city is not looking for improvement of its image simply for the sake of that

Politics Changes Things More frieodly perceptions blossoming in other states, in other parts of the country, can be of future beoefit to the city wheo such legislative considerations as federaliza-tico of welfare, loans to monicipalities, oew Federal revenue-sharing programs— all of them vital to New York -require support in other parts of the country.

How the city appears to out-of-towners becomes more important because political eveots now dictate that New York will be looked at with more care than had earlier been expected, and that what it has to offer will be sampled to a greater degree than had been expected. Since Jimmy Carter's nomination seems assured, there will be less tensionand less attention-at the convention, and city officials

In additioo, the city is reoting an entire commercial garage oo 31st Street for $28,000; it will provide 380 parking spaces a day for the duration of the convention. In addition, the city has cootracted for 90 buses, at a cost of $95,000, to transport delegates and their families from the three New York area airports to their botels. And buses will be available for those arriving by train at Penn Station and Grand

Officials hope that delegates, after a week of pampering, will change their minds about the city believe that the 5,000 delegates end their families, the 7,000 news workers who will here to cover them and the corps of diplomatic ob-servers here as guests of the Democratic National Chair-man, Robert Strauss, will be around the city more. This delights Charles Gillett. president of the New York Convention and Visitors Bureau. "It seems we will bave a set coovention,' be said in a recent interview.

"This will give more time to anjoy the city."

City's Outlay

Mr. Gillett estimates that $8 million will be spent di-rectly by convention delegates and visitors, but that the turnover will mean a speoding impact of $25 million to the city, and ha is urging anyone who wants to watch politicians for a week, or just visit the city, to come

It is expected that only about 20,000 of the city's 100,000 hotel rooms will be taken up by cooventiooeers, For its part, New York City is spending $3.5 million on the convention. Reotal of Madisoo Sqoare Garden bas been set at $1.9 millioo, a design and coostruction contract within the Garden calls for a payment of $1.4 million to a New York City concern, Mr. Friedman says, and an insurance policy will cost the city $215,000.

Transportation Authority is providiog 20 of its buses end 30 private buses to take delegates to and from Madison Square Garden, at a cost of $220,000. The convection has been a boon to the city in still another way. The Law En-forcement Assistance Administration, an arm of the Justice Department, has awarded the city a $2.6 million grant to pay expected nvertime costs for policemen.

Ticket Requests

Mr. Friedman, as the man designated by Mayor Beame as the coovention coordina-tor for the city, has been gettiog the calls and the letters requesting—and demaoding -tickets to the convection.

One political contributor wrote Mayor Beame thet be would put "a rubber beod around my wallet if I don't get tickets every day." Another, from Oregon, sug-gested that the study of a convection was fice for a thesis, A third, from Pennsylvania, pleaded that the writer bas wanted to attend a conventioo "since I was old enough to vote."

Mr. Friedman has been diplomatically referring some writers to the Democratic National Committee, some to the various state Democratic chairmeo; others have received promises of alugle tickets for individual days. And be says his mail shows that "people are starting to think about New York io a different way. It's nice to

And the city can benefit io still another way. For every day before July 30 that it has vacated the Garden, it will receive a $30,000 re-bate on its $1.9 million rental. This is on a graduated basis, and could mean as much as $200,000 in refunds if the city is able to clear out, as it expects to, by July

In additioo, the oetworks have agreed to indemnify the city for each day they are still in Madison Square Gar-deo beyond July 24. So if the city is prompt with its demolition and the television networks aren't, the cost of the convection to the city will

But although the mooey is obviously important to New York and to its economy as well—Mayor Beame nntes that ell of the expected spending "will result in taxes, yoo have to remem-ber"—it is the resurrection of the city's image as the pol-ished "Big Appla" that occu-pies New York as the convention gets ready to open.

See all the major brands, Listen to ideal systems all in one place.

Tech Hifi is the store that's more like a show. Where you can see, touch, and bear all the latest hifi equipment. In a variety that exists no place

When you enter a Tech Hifi soundroom, you'll be given a soft sofa, and all the time you want, to listen to recorded music that sounds more like a live performance than anything you have ever ex-

And, just by pushing a button, you'll be eble to compare how different combinations of components sound together.

Talk to hifi experts.

One of the reasons why Tech Hifi is more like a show is that our salespeople are more like consultants. They will be on hand to answer your questions, not to pressure you into buying.

When you come across some components that you'd really like to own, chances are they'll be on sale. Because nearly everything at Tech Hifi is on sale every week. (The reason why our prices are so low all the time is we purchase in huge quantities for our 50 locations).

Our size enables us to offer you many service warranties that smaller "discount warehouses" and appliance stores simply can't afford to give.

in every price range from $200 to $7.000.

While you're at The Hifi Show, ask an expert to show you the ideal system for your budget. The two examples we show here are specially Show-

CONCORD

For only $249 this week, you can get this remarkable music system. The ADC XT-6 2-way acoustic suspension loudspeakers provide tight bass response and very smooth highs. The Concord CR-110 am/fm stereo receiver has plenty of power to drive the XT-6's at levels of volume that you'd never expect from such; a reasonably priced system. And the Concord's tuner section will receive clean broadcasts from distant stations. or those squeezed together in crowded metropolitan airwaves.

This great little system also includes the very popular BSR 2260X automatic turntable. While most automatics in this price range still have mechanical bugs, the 2260X is virtually troublefree. It has a jam-proof light-tracking tonearm that goes easy on your records. You also get an ADC cartridge with this system.

Philips An ideal system for $529 is this one with the Marantz 2230 am/fm stereo receiver. It pumps out 30 watts min. RMS per channel, into 8 ohms. from 40 to 20,000 Hz. The speakers are the famous KLH 6, with impressive walnut enclosures. And for the turntable in this system our experts have selected the Philips GA427 belt-drive, with an AudioTechnica cartridge. Ask for a demonstration of this sytem at the The Hift Show this week.

Learn the finer points of hifi.

You don't have to be a sound engineer to appreciate the way music sounds oo a good hiff system. If you would like to learn some of the subtleties of stereo, you'll be interested in the special seminars and clinics that will be presented during The Hiff Show. You can get a schedule of upcoming events in your nearest Tech Hift.

Calendar of Events

During the Democratic National Convention, New York will be alive with events, some of them special, inspired by the visiting delegates, and others that carry on the city's reputation as a place to see things, do things and experience things. Here is a selection of some of is a selection of some of the activities on a day-by-

PARK FLICKS

Central Park at night may be one of the first things you have been warned to stay away from, but it is just the pls ! to be tonight from 9 to 10:30 P.M. if you want to meet New Yorkers, see movmeet New Yorkers, see movies and get an idea of what New York in the summertime is all about. This is the season's opener of "Movies in the Parks," a series sponsored by the Film Society of Lincoln Center and the city's Cultural Affairs Department. There are nine short movies, among them a documentary, "July 4th in Old New York;" a danca film, "In A Rehearsal Room;" "Organism," a film about "Organism," a film about New York; and "Home on the Range," a short study of a gourmet meal. All this takes place in Central Park at Cedar Hill, off Fifth Avenue at 79th Street (just south of the Metropolitao Museum of Art). Admission is free.

CHILD CARE

For the children, who may not be that interested in political matters, shopping or purely intellectual uplift, the New York Classroom is offering tours at $15 per young-ster. The tourists on these trips range between 6 and 16 years of age. There are a number of tours tailored to their desires. One takes in the Statue of Liberty, Chinatown and downtown Manhattan. Another goes to the Bronx Zoo, and others visit Rocke-feller Center and the American Museum of Natural History-Hayden Planetarium. Leave daily Monday through Thursday at 9:15 A.M., return about 4:30 P.M. A licensed schoolteacher is in charge on each bus. Information: 734-3654. Departs and returns Schwarz, the big toy store at 58th Street and Fifth Avenue.

Tuesday

SOVIET FOLK

A chance to see what the Soviet Union considers its top talent in folk dancing and siogiog is at your doorstep at the Metropolitan Opera Street and Broadway. This company of 175, known as "Russiao Festival of Music and Dance," has been whipped into top-spinning form by Igor Moiseyev. The show moves out of New York at the end of the week. Evenings at 8. Information, box office: 787-3880.

CLUBBY

Cleo is a new cafe-restaurant at 1 Lincoln Plaza, the large complex just across the street from Lincoln Center. Tonight at 10, there will be an opening for a familiar voice there: Bricktop, the 81year-old nightclub hostess who kept a permanently re-served table for Cole Porter in her Parisian club during the 1920's and '30's. With her is Jimmie Daniels, who sang with her in Europe; Sylvia di Giorgio, a singer, and Stewart Hart, a singing pianist. Shows are nightly at 10. Entertainment charge: $4 weekdays; $5 Friday and Saturday. There's an a lacarte menu. Information: 724-6301.

Wednesday

GARMENT CENTER

Garment Center, which is in the upper 30's on Seventh Avenue. The big. fashionable store is at Fifth Avenue and 56th Street, but today at 10 A.M. it will be the place where the great minds of fashion meet the convention women who, they hope, buy the clothes they design. Among the stellar guests at this breakfast: Bill Blass, Pauline Trigere, Mollie Par-nis, Donna Karan, Scott: Barrie, Donald Brooks, This pagne and strawberry crois-

The Medium's the Thing At a National Convention

By JOSEPH LELYVELD

On television's summer schedules, the Democratic National Convention is wedged into a narrow trough hetween two events of sufficiently high viewer interest and network enterprise to qualify as spectaculars, the Bicentennial and the summer Olympics.

Since the dates for those events were fixed in advance—six years in one case, 200 in the other-the Democrats could have chosen no other week in the mooth of July for their gathering without forfeiting the opportunity for reasonably unchallenged access to television's mass

The shaping influence of television on the convention starts with its timing, and extends to a myriad of details that have to do with scheduling, the length of speeches, the speakers' wardrones, the accessibility of makeup rooms to the podium and, fittingly, the design of the podium itself by experienced set de-

Beyond that, the influence of television extends to the substance of what is said, because the audience for the convention is not confined to the 8,000 big contributors, party workers, office-holders and wheeler-dealers who have earned or finagled seats in the grandstand. That is analogous, simply, to tha studio audience; the real audience is the mass of TV viewers at home whose attention cannot be taken for granted.

For the Democrats, as well as the three major networks, the story of the convention will be told not only in tallies of delegate votes—in this case, all but a foregone conclusion—but also in Nielsen and Arbitron ratings. In short, it is true-and it has been for a generatioo-that an American political convention cannot succeed unless it succeeds as a television event.

A Painful 1972 Lesson

In 1972, at Miami Beach, the Democrats relearned this simple maxim, painfully. A surfeit of spootaneous emotioos made a shambles of their consultants' carefully calculated timetables, with the result that the nominee, Senator George McGovern of South Dakota, delivered his acceptance speech in the wee, small hours of the morning when America was mostly tuned off. The election results indicated that most of the nation's voters stayed that way, as far as Mr. McGovern was concerned.

Planning for the Democratic convention this year has been haunted by the memory of the 1972 debacle, If any certainty attaches to any part of the convention schedule, Democratic officials insist, it is that the nominee will deliver his acceptance speech this Thursday at 10:30 P.M. Eastern daylight time when," as one of the officials explained it, "no one's asleep yet in the East and they're all off the freeways

The epitome of the well-scripted convention was achieved by the Republicans in 1972, when even the "spontaneous applause" was calculated in advance with stopwatch accuracy. Contemplating the technical sophistication to compare it with the work of a great

The cumulative TV ratings for 1972 indicate that spontaneity and the clasb of opinions as newsworthy events is not

Radio-TV Schedule

Only one television network, NBC, has announced full gavel-to-gavel coverage of the Democratic National Convention. The tentative schedule is for the broadcasts to hegin at 7 P.M. Monday, 3 P.M. Tuesday, 7 P.M. Wednesday and 12:30 P.M. Thursday.

CBS-TV is to provide what it calls "comprehensive" coverage, which means that the bulk of the coovention will be broadcast live. The CBS coverage is scheduled to begin at 7:30 P.M. on Monday, 3:30 P.M. on Tuesday, 7:30 P.M. on Wednesday and 1:30 P.M. oo Thursday. There is to be a one-hour hreak for news at 6 P.M. Tuesday and a balf-hour break Thursday

ABC-TV will provide "edit-d" cooventioo coverage only during the evening. The broadcasts will include a roundup of each day's proceedings coupled with live coverage from the conven-

ABC tentatively plans to start the convention broad-casts at 9:30 P.M. Mooday and 7:30 or 8 P.M. Tuesday. The Tuesday hroadcast is to be interrupted for the All-Star baseball game, which is to be followed by further convention coverage at 11:15 P.M. The network plans to begin its convention broadcast at 9 P.M. Wednesday and 8 P.M. Thursday.

necessarily what the television audience is looking for in a political convention. The Democrats had too much spontaneity that year and the Republicans none at all, but their ratings were virtually

Al Vecchione, who is serving as the Democrats' television consultant this year, believes that the enemy of a successful convention, from the standpoint of television, is not spontaneity but

"I hope to deal with simple ideas, simple words and simple music," he

His basic function, as Mr. Vecchione sees it, is to make sure that the Democrats convey a message to the masa audience that is responsive to its post-Watergate mood. In other words, he says, the party has to show that it understands why people are disenchanted with politicians and that it shares their yearning for a return to simpler values. Concerned With Tone and Mood

It is not the function of Mr. Vecchione. who is on leave from the National Public Affairs Center for Television, to say what those values are. His concern is tone and mood. To set the one and evoke the other, he poured over photographs of the 1924 convention—tha last to be held in New York—and designed a rostrum that is intended to be vaguely similar to the one from which Franklin D. Roosevelt, in his first major public appearance since being atrickeo with polio, nominated Alfred E. Smith, "the happy warrior," for the Presidency.

If the average bome viewer does not make that esoteric connection when Mayor Beame goes to the rostrum tonight to deliver a welcoming address, Mr. Vecchione hopes that the viewer will, at least, think of something authentically American, such as a small-town bandstand.

With similar intent, he has put together a film for the opening night that will feature a television actor, Ed Asner "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," in the role of Finley Peter Dunne's garrulous saloon keeper, Mr. Dooley, Mr. Asner will then introduce the live delegates, making the thematic point that these are working Americans who understand bow it is out there in the real

The political party and the networks may have a common interest in making sure that a conventioo is successful as a television event, but their definitions of success are not the same. If the conveotion is a fiasco and yet a network has managed to bring its news-gathering and broadcasting skills to hear on that flasco, winning high ratings and critical acclaim, its executives may well take pride in their success.

The highest ratings achieved by a political conventioo in the 24 years that conventions have been nationally televised were won by the Democrats in Chicago in 1968. Needless to say, that is not Mr. Vecchione's standard of suc-

For the networks, the political conventions provide a rare opportunity to flex the muscles of their news divisions and win new viewers for their regular evening news shows; at least, that is the rationalization customarily adnced when the time comes to rationalize the stupeodous investment the networks make in convention coverage.

"It's the big act, the big chance," said Gordon Manning, who is in charge of convention coverage for NBC.

$13 Million a Convention

The Democrats themselves are limited by law to an expenditure of $2 million on the convention. That is almost small change by the standards of the networks, which are expected to spend about $13 million to cover the convention in Madisoo Square Garden this week, and the same amount in Kansas City, Mo., when the Republicans convene next month. "We bave built what in many markets would amount to a very well-equipped television station," said Russell Bensley, the television producer in charge of convention coverage at CBS, as be guided a visitor through the labyrinth of cootrol rooms, editing rooms and studios that the network bas constructed in and around the Garden for its four-day fling-

Rohert Siegenthaler, Mr. Bensley's opposite number at ABC, described this kind of all-out effort as an anachrooism. "It is like a medieval siege engine," he remarked. "Every four years we build the thiog and run it over and storm

Eight years ago, ABC concluded that there was a large audience for condensed coverage of the conventions; this year, too, it will devote less than half as many hours to the proceedings as its rivals.

Tomorrow night ABC will broadcast the All-Star baseball game from Philedelphia, switching back to the Garden floor between innings for highlights of what is expected to be the mildest debate on a Democratic platform in recent memory.

The missing element of suspense in the Democratic convention this year bas led many newsmen, from what are now called the "print media" as well as from television, to assume that there will not be much interest in what happens at the Garden.

But is suspense really what the public seeks? Old convention ratings seem to tell another story. In 1964, the last time the Democrats had a "coronation" rather than a contest, they won a much larger audience than the Republicans, who were tearing themselves apart.

The exposure of the voters to the candidates and their parties has been in minutes and fractions of minutes throughout the long primary season. The sustained exposure that the conventions provide is never approached again on TV until Election Day itself. Could it be that sizable numbers of voters watch with this in mind?

John Chancellor, the NBC anchorman. conceded recently that the Democratic convention coverage might be "outdrawn by old Elvis Presley movies." But there was still an interesting story to be told, he said—in this case, the slory of Jimmy Carter and his rise.

"I think the audience feels, a lot of them, that they want to participate in the process," he said, "even if the story has no bigh-noon, gunslinger thing."

A Platform Built Of Flexible Planks

By DAVID E. ROSENBAUM

Io years past, the Demo-cratic National Convention's platform debates have involved the great divisive issues of the natioo's history -slavery and Reconstruction, free silver and monopo-lies, Prohibition and womeo's suffrage, civil rights and the Vietnam war.

There have been sit-ins and walk-outs, thunderous ora-tioos and violent riots. Democrats pride themselves on the breadth of the party's our the platform among ideologically opposed elements of the party has been the rule at convention time.

This year, however, it will be different. When the con-vention takes up the plat-form tomorrow night, there will be a discussion, but no debate; a performance, but no drama. There probably will not even be a roll-call vote.

Speakers Listed

Gov. George C. Wallace of Alabama will describe to the convention the platform's statement oo government re-form. Mayor Richard J. Daley of Chicago will defend the section on aid to cities. Patricia Roberts Harris, former Ambassador to Luxembourg and the first black woman to serve as United States ambassador, will speak to the convection on bow the document treats foreign policy. Other prominent Democrats from various factions of the party will speak on other parts of the platform.

Four years ago io Miami Beach, an 11-hour platform debate on such controversial issues as busing, homosexual rights, capital punishment and abortion on demand left the impression with some voters that the party was a collection of exotics. By con-trast, this convention is scheduled to complete its work oo the platform tomorrow night in two or three

The party's Platform Committee met in Washington last month and drafted a document designed to be specific enough to satisfy the interest groups that are the mainstay of the party, yet general enough to embrace as many voters as possible.

Broad but Flexible

The platform sets broad principles in an attempt to distinguish Democrats from their Republican opponents in the fall campaign, yet it is flexible enough to embarrass neither liberals nor conservatives.

Representatives of Jimmy Carter, who is all but certain to be the party's Presidential nominee, made sure that the platform contained nothing that the former Georgia Governor could not support and Mr. Carter has announced that be finds the document acceptable.

Only one minority plank will be offered, and it has been worded in such a way that it seems likely to be adopted by acclamation. It deals with a change in the Hatch Act, the law that forbids partisan political activi-ty by Federal civil servants. When the matter came before the Platform Committee, a proposal stating, "We sup-port repeal of the Hatch Act," was rejected by a vote of 48 to 37, with nearly balf the committee's members abseot. Subsequently, the required ooe-fourth of the committee members signed a petition to have a revised versioo offered at the convention as a minority plank.

The new version states, "We support the revision of the Hatch Act so as to extend to Federal workers the same political rights enjoyed by other Americans as a birth-right, while still protecting the Civil Service from politi-cal abuse."

No Opposition Likely

The language, cleared in advance with party officials, has aroused no opposition. It will be proposed by Michael Steed, a delegate from California, who is special counsel to the Los Angeles City At-

Legislation that would have revised the Hatch Act cleared Congress, with heavy Demo-cratic support, last March, but was vetoed by President Ford. The House sustained the veto the following month.

Under the party rules, no other minority plank can be offered, and there is no provision in the rules for recognition of a delegate who wants to speak against any other part of the document.

At the 1972 coovention, 20 minority planks were proposed and two were adopted. To cut down the oumber that could be offered, the party adopted a new rule for this convention that requires sup-port by 25 percent of the Platform Committee members — instead of the 10 per-cent needed in 1972 — before a minority plank can be brought to the floor of the conventioo.

The platform is divided into six chapters, each of which will be discussed and voted on in turn. In order, their titles are: full employment, price stability and balanced growth, government reform and business accountability; government and human needs; states, counties and

By RICHARD SEVERO

There must be some reasons that this is only the third time in 144 years that the Democrats are bolding their national convention in New York, and that the Republicans bave never held a national convention here. Perhaps some clues can be found in a dispatch sent to The Cincinnati Enquirer just after the first New York convention opened on a sweltering July 4, 1868:

"The unfitness of New York as a place for holding a national convention is pretty well demonstrated already," the dispatch said, complaining that the Democratic delegates were scattered all over town and that "men spend the whole day in traversing the city in pursuit of one another, and at night are as far from the objectives of their search as they were in the morning."

A bad out-of-town press. Perhaps The Enquirer's man would not have been so turned off by the city's enormity had he not been turned away from Tammany Hall the day before.

The gleaming new Tammany headquarters, finished only months before with $300,000 of the dubious resources of the followers and cronies of William Marcy Tweed, was an imposing marble and red brick structure on 14th Street between Irviog Place and Third Avenue. a site now occupied by Consolidated

Barred by Tammany Officials

When reporters, especially out-oftown reporters, tried to eoter, they were barred by Tammany officials because they lacked the proper "talismanic hadges and tickets." The New York Times said the reporters were thus "defrauded of their rights and organized an impromptu indignation meeting. was considerable acrimonious

Reporters soon found that strong drink and strong language, then two of the striking features of their professioo, were abundant elsewhere in New York amoog ooojournalists. On the hot, sticky night before the convention started. Henry Clay Dean gave a speech to the Metropolitan Democratic Club, just two blocks from Tammany, and attacked Horace Greeley, editor of The New York Tribune, who would be nomi-nated both by liberal Republicans and Democrats for President four years later, as "a liar and an old baldheaded booby." Mr. Dean's speech went downhill from there.

Unlike the delegates coming to New York this year, there was coosiderable division among the 1868 Democrats as to whom to select. There was disaffection from President Andrew Johnson, who bad narrowly escaped an impeachment effort six weeks before the convention opened.

After the convention was four days old and seemingly unable to select a candidate, The Times called for the nomination of Sanford E. Church of

New York, who was not regarded as a major contender.

"It is not to be supposed that everyone will vote for Grant," the Republican nominee in 1868. The Times said in an editorial. "There are gond reasons why many should not vote for him. He smokes cigars and crushed the rebellion; he can't make speeches and is the head of an army; he does not elicit popular enthusiasm and it is doubted if he be great statesman.

The Times noted that in contrast, Mr. Church did not smoke, did not crush the rebellion and probably could, if asked, make speeches

A 22d-Ballot Winner

The next day, on the 22d ballot, the Democrats nominated former Gov. Horatlo Seymour of New York, and The Pittsburgh Gazette snorted: "It is precisely adopted to repel the intelligent, moderate and conscientious citizen to satisfy the extremists of the South and West and yet be cordially supported by Wall Street, provided the latter shall secure the candidates."

Mr. Seymour was not liked by The Times, either, which called his speeches "suspiciously vague." and a headline writer termed his nomination a "catas-

While all this was going on, delegates were able to read in the New York press all about the culture of New York as seen by journalists: a panoply of knife fights, pickpockets, children drowning in the East River, people falling out of wagoos and run over by horses, and the seemingly interminable barassmeot of black people.

Racial friction in New York did not bother the Democrats all that much. Part of the platform they produced con-demned the Republican program of Reconstruction as "oppression and tyranny" and complained that Republicans had subjected the nation to 'milltary despotism and Negro supremacy."

In any event, before they adjourned, the Democrats received a letter from Susan B. Anthony demanding the "enfranchisement of the womeo of America," which they laughed at, and were treated to a $30,000 fireworks display arranged by Mayor Oakey Hall. They were also relieved to learn that the New York police had been largely successful in enforcing their ban against "firing pistols, guns or cannon in the public streets" either over the Fourth of July weekend or for the rest of the week.

It was 56 years later-in 1924-before the Democratic National Convention returned to New York-this time to Madisoo Square Garden, then at Madisoo Avenue and East 26th Street, Despite the memorable "happy warrior" speech by Franklin D. Roosevelt for the nomination of Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York, it was not to be Mr. Smith's day.

Long, Loud and Sad

By 1924, the city's population bad grown to about 6 million, but the folks from Cincinnati found lots of telephones and an extended public transportation system. So it did not really matter that the Missouri delegation was in the McAlpin and that beadquarters for William Gibbs McAdon were in the Vanderbilt, although some women delegates expressed anger that every time they got into a taxi at the Vanderbilt, it contained a poster calling for the nomination of Al Smith.

The 1924 convention was the longest (17 days) and one of the loudest, most uncoordinated and divisive conventions ever held by the Democrats.

It was one of the saddest, too, because at the end of it, it was clear that the time had not yet arrived in American history where a major party could nominate a Roman Catbolic to be President of the United States, although it happened four years later.

Nor could the same party, which would within a decade become identified with progressive liberal legislation to deal with problems of poverty and unemployment, bring itself to issue a clear-cut denunciation of the Ku Klux

It was a classic battle between Western, rural, mostly Protestant "drys" sup-porting Mr. McAdoo of California, who was Woodrow Wilson's son-in-law and a former Secretary of the Treasury, against Eastern, urban, anti-Prohibitionists touting the candidacy of New York's Governor Smith, a Roman Catho-

"East Side, West Side," Mr. Smith's campaign song, was heard incessantly all over towo, especially on June 23, the day before the convention started. when 25,000 New York City employees paraded.

But the nation at large was not ready for Mr. Smith, who was called "a wet papal governor" by The American Standard, a twice-monthly magazine, which issued this warning: "Awake, sleeping Protestants, do not let this vas-sal of a foreign potentate hypnotize you into making him the next occupant of the Executive Mansion."

Davis Wins on 103d Ballot

The Democrats balloted 103 times before they selected John W. Davis of West Virginia, a Wall Street lawyer and former Ambassador to Britain, to run against President Coolidge, the Republican candidate, and Senator Robert La Follette, the Progressive Party candi-

But before Mr. Davis was picked, delegates cast votes for 59 different nominees, which, like the 103 ballots, was a record number. If the proceedings dld not assure a place in the sun for Mr Davis, the man he edged out, Senator Oscar W. Underwood of Alabama, is even more obscure.

Senator Underwood received most of Mr. Smith's votes when the New Yorker withdrew, and at one point-on the 101st ballot—he had 229½ votes, which made him second to Mr. Davis. Because Alabama was first alphabetically in the roll-cali vote, some people can still re-call Gov. William W. Brandon of Alabama intoning, in a seemingly endless number of roll-calls, "Alabama casts 24 votes for Oscar W. Underwood!"

It was a long, hot, miserable 17 days. "My shoes hurt me, other parts of my apparel are most uncomfortable and it's hot," one woman delegate told a Times reporter. "I'm bored to death trotting around to museums, and I just wish

I was back home." Other delegates may have been just as uncomfortable, but they were certainly not bored. One delegate was bitten by what he said was a spider. Two thousand other delegates made the mistake of accepting Samnel Untermyer's invitation to a dinner party on the lawn of his Yonkers estate, Greystone-on-the-

Delegates Marooned

Unfortunately, a 20-minute thunderstorm, accompanied by winds of 72 miles an bour, hit the metropolitan area as the 53 buses carrying the delegates were traveling to Yonkers. Three of the buses were marooned. The delegates wbo made it to Mr. Untermyer's found that the wind had knocked the side of a tent into their dinner, which had been prepared by Louis Sherry, the caterer. Mr. Untermyer's lawn was a swamp of hors d'oeuvres.

In the newspapers, delegates were invited to sample "the salubrious air of Asbury Park" in rented Packards or Peerless Sixes, and they were exhorted to purchase a Waterman's pen because every President of the United States since 1884 has used it in private life and officially." There were also endiess dinners and a performance of "Aida" at the Polo Grounds for those who might venture that far from midtown. For the more perceptive, the best of

"I don't try to oversell people on my cameras. And I won't be undersold on my prices"

Mario Hirsch

When someone comes into my store he's not gang tackled. If you want to just browse for an hour, fine with me. If you want somebody to wait on you, that's fine, too. I'll answer any questions vou have about a camera.

PII even take it out of the box for you, unwrap the camera, put on a lens and install the batteries. Now who else does that? At Hirsch Photo I believe before you buy a camera you should work. with it. I don't pressure people either. So if it's a Canon F-1 or EF, or a FTbn, P11 help you decide which is right for you. And after all that, if you don't buy it then that's okay, too. I know someday you'll be backbecause nobody else gives you that kind of service.

And nobody else gives you the kind of prices I do. Practically half my customers are professionals. They come with more cameras around their necks than I have in my store. You can't fool those guys. They know what a good deal is.

So that's it. Great service and great prices. These days it's a hard philosophy to always live up to, but I really have no. complaints. And neither do my customers.

His parents were the leaders of Archery, as close to a patrician class as the community owned, and even to this day, the black people in the area still remember his father as "Mister Earl."

The candidate himself is known by the same respect-

Like so many young South erners of that era, Mr. Carter, now 51 years old, moved away, looking for better things, leaving behind the rich, red dirt of his boybood but never quite getting it out of his blood.

Io fact, he came back, forsaking a promising naval career and settling in this town, just a few miles from Archery and the roots he has often traced in his campaign for the Presidency.

"I do have unique experi-ence," he said last month, "and one of the strpngest and best of these is my relationship with poor people. That's where I came from. That's where I live. A visit to Gage & Tollner is a nostalgic trip into the past. For we are one of the last of the great original Gay 90s eating houses. Today, we are a landmark. Our elegant dining room still echoes with the gaiety of the "good old days." Our menu still draws patrons from near and far to savor what many call the best American-style cooking in the country. And the service continues to reflect the hospitality of that bygone era. At Gage & Tollner, the art of making

The proposal that Mr. Carter not accept yesterday

"The national party shall take all feasible steps to assist state parties to incorporate this goal in their delegate-selection plans for the 1980 convention." That is language that gives the national party some author ity to intervene at the state level in party business, and may be what Mr. Carter found unacceptable. He did oot say this, however,

In his meeting with about 50 of the leading women Democrats, he merely reiterated his long-standing objection to "mandatory quotas."

During the meeting, in a small public room in his hotel. The Americana, Mr. Carter committed himself to work, as President, to eliminate "the last vestiges of legal discrimina-tion" against women.

By CHARLOTTE CURTIS

Jimmy and Rusalynn Carter welcomed 5,000 delegates to the Democratic National Convention last night at a huge, old-fashioned country picnic in a freshly forested Hudson River pier.

The trees were mostly palms, rubber plants and ficus, more common in Man-hattan's skyscrapers than the hattan's skyscrapers man the Carters' native Georgia. But it didn't matter, With the flowering begonia, ferus, philodendron, balloons, posters and all the other green and white decorations, Pier 88 looked like a garden. "We wanted it to feel like home," drawled Lee Austio, a chairman for the party.

"We've got fried chicken and greenery and pleoty of peanuts. The peanuts, all 250 pounds of them, were flown in from a highly publicized Southern state, divided among 50 wicker baskets lined with green burlap, and placed oo the tables.

"They're fresh and raw,"
Mrs. Dorothy Weill, another chairman, said. "Jimmy's kind of peanuts."

Motivation Changed

When the gathering was first planned, the Carter strategists figured their man gates. The moment his tally topped the 1,505 needed to nominate, it became a celenominate, it became a cele-bration and a chance for most delegates to get a first look at their nearly nominat-ed Presidential candidate. "I caught a glimpse of him at a rally," saio Carl Stuble, an Ohio delegate. "I'd like to talk to him. But I know an awful lot of people feel the same way. As Mr. Swanhorst talked, the candidate's mother, the inimitable Mrs. Lillian Carter, joined the receiving line. She reached out first with her left hand, then ber right band. She refused to be intimidated by the crowds.

"It's a nice party," she said. "I'm glad to be bere." Jack Hinson, a Greensboro, N. C., delegate, wore an "I'm for Rufus" button in honor of Rufus Edmisten, the state attorney general.

"I'm a Wallace delegate," be said, "but I don't know how I'm going to vote yet. Rufus hasn't old me and I haven't asked."

Mostly, the conventioners were eothusiastic about New York. They had taken chartered bus tours of Chinatown. Staten Island and the United Nations, and they came away pleased. "We had people tell us New Yorkers would be rude," said

Mrs. Frank Schneider Jr. of St. Paul. "It's not so. Isn't that right, Frank?" Mr. Schneider said that was correct. He is a Hum-

"I hope Massachusetts will be as traditional and typical as that question," the chairmao replied. Mr. Novak remained silent thereafter.

Despite considerable sophistication oo many politically sensitive issues, Mr. Strauss has never outgrown a Pullman-car-joke attitude toward women and shows little sign of trying to. While ha is demonstrably devoted to his wife and relies on respected female political associates, he meanwhile travels the land describing his dream girl: "She's deaf, dumb, oversexed and owns a liquor store."

Mr. Strauss was born October 19, 1918, in Lockhart, a small town in south central Texas. His father owned a dry goods store but preferred listening to opera on the radio to making money. Mr. Strauss was the chief fund-raiser of the successful 1962 Connaily state campaign, and that has remained one of his chief strengths as a politician to

A major source of Mr. Strauss's pride in his chairmaoship, little recognized outside the party's inner cir-cle, is that he reduced the littie recognized National Democratic debt from nearly $10 million left over from 1968 and 1972 to about $2 million today, with that now scheduled for retirement on a budgeted basis over the next three years.

As national chairman, Mr. Strauss has been primarily responsible for replacing a quota system for female, black and youthful delegates to the 1972 convention with an "affirmative action" program for 1976, which stress party activity toward fuller representation but does not punish any state for failure to meet a numerical goal.

The Kelleys beamed and exchanged jocularities among themselves about the altered attitude of hrusque old New York. They seemed almost relieved when a young New Yorker at the curb shouted, "Start your way down that wsy. Push your way oo down: We've got to work Texas in here."

Mr. Kelley said, "That's more like it."

But it was mainly the numbers, the rolling crowd, that flushed the visitors' faces with anticipation. Where the Kelleys come from, people are scarce. Most of them live so far apart that, as they say in Arkansas, every farm has to have its own tomcat.

The Arkansas delegates are staying at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel. To get there from La Guardia they had to ride a hus through an expanse of brick and asphalt that would be called a slum in the Kelleys' home town of Rogers, population 13,000.

COLORADO GIVES REAGAN 26 VOTES

State Awards Ford 4-He Leads Californian by 24 in National Count

By CHRISTOPHER LYDON Special to The New York Times

DENVER, July 11 — Colorado's Republican state coovention ended finally in a tennis score: 15-Love—that is, 15 out of 16 at-large national convention delegates for Ron-aid Reagan, and former Gov. Joho A. Love, a supporter of President Ford'a, squeaking onto the delegation by dint of long-ago service to all party factions here.

Mr. Reagan had earlier won the contest for Colorado's district delegates by an II-3 mar-

Finally, Representative Wil-liam L. Armstrong of Colorado was elected as an uncommitted delegate with Ford-campaign help in the pro-Reagan Fifth District. For good reason, theo, Mr. Armstrong is said to be truly on the fence in the unpredictably close contest for the Republican Presidential nomi-nation,

With all of Colorado's 31 national convention votes now included, President Ford's lead over the former Governor of California has shrunk to only 24 delegates, or barely 1 per-cent of the decided votes, as abulated by the New York

Among bound or openly pledged delegates, Mr. Ford has 1,067 convention votes, according to The Times's count. Mr. Reagan has 1,043. Ninety-four other delegates have not com-mitted themselves. And 55 more are still to be chosen next weekend: 35 in Conoectcut, where the Ford camp expects to harvest a big majority, and 20 in Utah, conceded to be Reagan country.

Former Governor Love, who quit his office bere in 1973 to become President Nixon's first. (and short-term), energy czar, is so revered a figure hereabouts that one booth at the Republican convention in Fort Collins this weekend was actually offering, and selling, "Love ties," rather ordinary and usedlooking four-in-hands which, the sign said, "John Love wore In the Governor's office."

The Reagan captaios were nonetheless resentful because Mr. Love scrambled onto their delegation by less than a handful of votes among the 2.116 men and women gathered yes terday in the 95 degree heat on the floor of the Colorado State University basketball gym.

In their continuing search for credential challenges at the Kansas City conventioo next month, Mr. Reagan's staff thought they had a good one here against Mr. Love. It seems that on a third of the ballots distributed here, the name of a wonld-be Reagan delegate. Herbert Franklin Koether, was not underlined, as the names of all the other delegate-candidate were, Mr. Koether lost the 16th spot on the at-large delegation to Mr. Love by a mere four votes, according to still-unofficial tallies.

John R. Sears, the Reagan campaign manager, brooded darkly but made no formal pro-test last night.

Mr. Reagan flew yesterday to California. This afternoon he went to Palm Springs for a surprise party at the estate of publisher and more recently Ambassador to Britain. The surprise for Mr. Annenberg's 139-or-so guests was correctly rumored to be the wedding of Frank Sinatra, a personal and show-business friend of Mr. Reagan's, and Barbara Marx.

The Man Who Makes Things Happen

By TOM BUCKLEY

His role in the Democratic National Convention has been overlooked, even by the most astute analysts, and Jimmy McManus prefers it that way. As the host district leader, the unchallenged symbol of Democratic puissance in the area that includes Madison Square Garden and Jimmy Carter's headquarters at the Americana Hotel, he is in a position to make things happen, or oot bappen, as the case may be.

It is unlikely, for example, that the attendance at the rally in front of the hotel when the candidate arrived there on Saturday would have been an large and en-thusiastic if members of Mr. McManus's club had not spent the morning distrib-uting handbills all over the Times Square area.

Not only that. A half dozen of his most trusted jaoizaries have been pressed into service as liaison officers by the party's Credentials Committee. Others will help to man the Carter camp's "bost rooms" at the Americana. "It all began happening just a few days ago," said Mr. McManus. "One of Car-ter's people named Ken Crad-dock called me up. It was the same guy who invited me to meet Carter eight months ago. Like all the pols, I said 'Jimmy?'' Mr. McManus was chatting while taking a breather after the rally, over a plain club soda with a slice of lemoo in a bar at the Americana. With him were his co-leader, Mary D'Elia, and two of his stal-warts. Jim Condeelis and Lew Feinstein.

On his way into the hotel, Mr. McManus had been warmly greeted by William vanden Heuvel, who headed the Carter campaign in the city.

It is generally assumed among professional politicians that Mr. vanden Heuvel ended up in that corner because no other corner was open to him. He now finds himself in the delicious position of not returning the call to the same people who were not returning his s year ago.

"Guys like Bill prove that politicians are never dead," said Mr. McManus, "They're only sleeping for a little turned out 1,200 votes for Mr. Udail, compared with only 400 for Secator Henry Scooo Jackson, who might have been regarded as the logical candidate for a dis-trict in which working meo and the aged are heavily represented.

What I didn't pay enough attention to," Mr. McManus said, "was that Carter got 326 votes, 100 more than Jackson, without any campaigning at all."

Jim Condeelis, who is presentiy unemployed, his job at tha Comptroller's office having been eliminated to the great budget squeeze, said that his unsalaried job with the Credentials Committee would be one of great delicacy.

"There are different credentials for each day of the convention," he said. "Tve got to deliver the credentials to the Arkansas delegation. I had to have an interview to get the job. Only nine out of 23 applicants passed it. The main thing is that I've got to give the credentials only to the chairman of the delegation and not to anyone else, no matter what they til me."

Mr. McManus, who is 41 years old, and an attaché at the Board of Elections, is the third generation of his family to hold the Democratic leadership in what used to be called the Hell's Ritchen district since his great-uncle defeated George Washington Plunkitt, best remembered as the man who said "I seen my opportunities and 1 took 'em," in 1905. He and bis companions, all born and bred Manhattanites, admitted that they were somewhat baffled by Southerners as a group and by Mr. Carter in

"The only time I ever was in the South was when I was in the Navy." Mr. Mc. Manus said. "I was stationed at a missile base near Portsmouth, Va. I was the only Northerner and the only Catholic in the outfit. All the rest were Southerners. The only ones who would talk to me were the blacks, and they had to be careful."

Mr. Condeells, whose father operated a clothing store on Ninth Avenue for 40 years, said he had served with the Air Force in Biloxi, Miss. "It wasn't so bsd," he said. "I thlnk they were different in Biloxi, on the Gulf Coast, than they are in other parts

The Problem of Accounting Standards

By ROBERT D. HERSHEY Jr.

WASHINGTON, July 11-Not many people whose business is subject to close scrutiny by Government regulators bave been bold enough to directly challenge

So it came as a shock when the accounting firm of Arthur Andersen & Company did just that a few weeks agochallenging not just important rulings by the Securities and Exchange Commission but the commission's very authority in making the decisions.

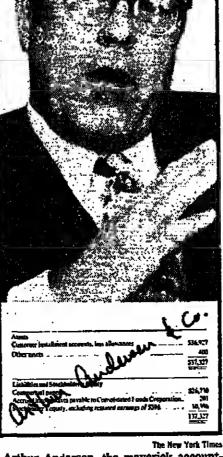

To be sure, Arthur Andersen, headed by Harvey E. Kapnick Jr., is a maverick in the accounting fraternity. It went so far three years ago as to aue to prevent a limited commission pronouncement on merger accounting from taking effect, and it also has accused the S.E.C. of improperly indicting three of its auditors for accurities fraud.

But when Andersen petitioned tha S.E.C. again last month it almost seemed the firm was determined to insure its unpopularity all around. It held the commission's instructions for complying with a new rule to be "unreasonable, arbitrary and capricious, an abuse of discretion, a deprivation of due process and contrary Andersen was objecting to an S.E.C. ruling last September saying that when a company makes changes in the way it accounts for given transactions its auditors must state that the change is a switch to a "preferred" method.

Many other firms have agreed with Andersen in holding that this puts them individually in the position of setting accounting principles. This, they maintain, will produce contradictory accounting practice and will ultimately lead to uneccept-able exposure to lawsuits.

However, Andersen also took the occasion to launch a broadside attack on the process by which accounting principles are set, and in this it had almost no support

Continued From Page D1 smoke screen for the fundamental question of who should set accounting principles," declared A. Clarence 5ampson, associate chief accountant of the 5.E.C., in an interview.

Although the commission has the full authority to set accounting standards itself, it has relied formally oo the private sector to do so since 1938. It has thrown its weight behind various industry panels, including the Fi-nancial Accounting Stand-ards Board, formed in 1973 as the standard-setter.

What Andersen has done is to challenge the authority of the commission to make such a delegation of authority without first going through formal administrative procedures. The S.E.C.'s release No. 150, - providing the F.A.S.B. with its authority, in the most introvient acis the most important ac counting rule it ever issued, Andersen maintains.

For the ordinary investor or even the businessman, the question of who writes what become the generally accepted accounting rules exceptions to which must be noted in financial statements) might seem relatively unimportant to his investments or his company's for-

But such debate appears to reflect a still broader issue -the iocreasing desire on the part of lawyers, accountants and company executives for specific rules from the Government on proper behavior covering a myriad of individual situations. Such rules, many believe, are nec-essary for consistent performance of their jobs and also for defenses against charges of malpractice. This has been particularly evident in the area of questionable corporate payments. Many have called for specific standards stating under what conditions bribes, commissions or political contributions should he considered of "material" interest to investors and thus requiring disclosure,

The S.E.C. has resisted, arguing in effect that such a rule book can't he written (or administered) without iving too much comfort to those who might seek to evade the rules or apply them in a way that misrepresents what happens in the real world.

The parallel is not perfect toward both corporate payments and accounting prob-lems relies on the assumption that the world is not a tidy place and that the Government cannot write rules governing all situations.

Its view also combines nicely with tha concept of self-regulation and with the make tasks such as writing accounting standards itself a practical impossibility. The commission has vig-

Thursday night, your payroll system became retroactively obsolete.

This is the week that employers have to begin figuring out how to accommodate the new New Jersey Income Tax.

But thousands of these employers aren't worried.

Because ADP does their payrolls.

And their payrolls will automatically comply. At no additional cost.

Meaning none of ADP's clients will have to spend the rest of the summer figuring out how they're going to implement it - while the people who are going to implement it are on vacation.

They won't have to spend their time and money to retrack and refigure payrolls back to July 1st.

Or change panel boards in their accounting machines.

Or reprogram their computers. Or suffer through non-conforming form problems.

Or make up new deduction charts: Or dig up additional W-2's.

Or compute all kinds of mind boggling payroll tax problems. Like the guy who works part of the time in New Jersey, but most of the time in some other state.

Because ADP will do it. And as we said, it'll be done, automatically, now, and free.

You see, accommodating income tax law changes for clients isn't new to ADP. We've been through it in every state that has an income tax. Our payroll system has the flexibility to handle it quickly. And totally.

Look, the week's still young. The problem's still ahead. If you ever thought about calling ADP before, why not make

But until relatively recently—say, four years ago—the commodity futures industry operated with little attention paid to the overall trend in the prices of raw materiais.

Commodity traders basically followed two main schools of market philosophy. One was either a "fundamentalist," who studied supply and demand, or a "technician," who believed in the price charts of releted farm or industrial raw ma-

However, the 1972 Soviet grain deal and its profound bullish effect on all commodity prices, including petro-leum some 18 months later, have drawn industry attention to the futures price in-dexes provided by the Com-Research Bureau, modity New York a nontrading research institution.

Regardless of whether the trade or speculative interests in commodity markets are fully convinced about the for index watching, they cite the burean's average as the best available. This is not so surprising inasmuch as all major brokerage houses have been using Commodity Research Bureau charts, statistical material and specialized market studies since the concern was set up in 1934. So have many traders and speculators.

To William L. Jiler, who runs the company with his brothers Harry and Milton, it is also no surprise. As he noted in an interview the "The commodity markets always complex have oot

Basically, the bureau's futures price index, whether daily, weekly or monthly, is based on a simple formula. The prices of every futures delivery month over a one-year period for 27 basic commodities are run through a computer to reach the index figure, which uses 1967 price vels as a base.

Last Friday, for example, the research bureau's futures price index closed at 226.5, compared with the record of 237.8 posted on Feb. 27, 1974, during the unsettled days of the Arab oil embargo. This time four years ago, the index was 110. Since the 1974 peak, the lowest level. was 176, set in February 1975, when the recession began gripping the world.

Mr. Jiler pointed out that his index was not weighted or disordered, that its components were restricted to rapeseed, barley and flaxseed futures, which are traded only on the Winnipeg. Canada, Commodity Exchange. Nor does the index include the prices of gold bullion.

"Although the London commodities markets are very important," Mr. Jiler explained, "they are oot always free of extreme currency and political developments. The current inflationary situation in London, for example, is far worse than in this nation."

As for gold bullion, Mr. Jiler said the metal was not basic to industry or com-merce. "Gold tends to lie dormant for long periods, and when it does move it usually does so violently." Asked why two wheat markets were included. Chicago and Minneapolis, he replied that it was necessary to measure distinct grades often traded in the two exchanges.

Wheat prices on the Chicago Board of Trade generally reflect ordinary grades of the grain, while those on the much smaller Minneanolis Grain Exchange are usually based on the higher protein content traded there.

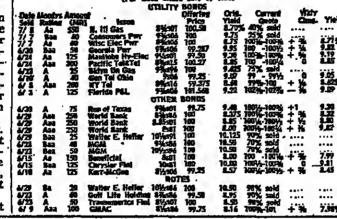

The other major American grain exchange, the Kansas City Board of Trade, usually carries prices that reflect movements in Chicago, minus

"Because of the current bank dispute, it will be necessary for us, in order to obtain maximum quality discounts from our suppliers, to pay for all our goods in cash. Consequently, we regret we will oot accept checks for the duration of the present dis-

Outside Dublin it has be-come harder for farmers to sell cattle at auctioo because they oormally deal with checks. During the last strike a few meo used bad checks to buy cattle that they then sold for cash. One, it is said, is oow a wealthy rancher in New Zealand.

Ireland is still functioning because far more employers oow than six years ago pay their workers in cash, Civil servants are still paid in checks. But the next day they cash them at the country's central bank, which has opened offices within the Government departments. The current bank strike could be worse than the last, since bankers and economists to some have seemed to be tentative signs of a modest a national incomes policy to moderate wage and price in-creases. But the leading trade unions vetoed the proposed policy, and they have released their members to go out and bargain freely for whatever wages they can get. The bank strike erupted before the unions voted on the pay policy. The banks and the 10,000 members of the Irish Bank Officials Association settled on an agreement that exceeded the Government's proposed wage guideline. The Government, while not rejecting the agree-ment, said it wanted time to study it. The clerks walked

A World Without Secretaries

When account executives (or any other kinds of executives) at N. W. Ayer ABH International or Young & Rubicam want to dictate a letter or memo, they don't call in their secretaries. They reach for their phones.

That's because those two agencies are part of the growing number of businesses that have established wordprocessing centers, electron-ically equipped units that spew out paperwork.

In a labor-intensive busi-ness like ad agencies, such facilities can mean real savings. Samuel C. Zurich, vice president-administration at Ayer, says that returning to the old system of individual secretaries would mean hiring 40 more people and increasing the annual payroll by $500,000.

However, establishing such system ruffles the feathers of those accustomed to the services of a personal secretary. Imagine sharing a sec-retary with another executive? Imagine sharing a sec-retary with five others? That's the average at Ayer, where such a person is now called a group assistant and need not be an expert typist. Even the chairman and president share. Such a concept can come as a shock, as it did to Pat-rick T. Connolly, an Ayer vice president, when he arrived a decade ago from the comforts of Lever Brothers. "When I first joined," he recalled, "I thought of leaving the first year because it drove me out of my bird, I

Ayer was probably a pio-neer in this area. The late Robert Burke, who was the agency's controller and a man "dedicated to wiping out the one-on-one system," set up an experimental pool operation in New York 15

Many of the words proc-essed at both agencies arrive at the centers as parts typed or handwritten drafts. At Y. & R., took the step only about three years ago, most words arrive that way. As they say, it's something that takes time to get used to.

Among the larger licensers in New York are Halston and Bill Blass, whose lists of items rival those of Ame Klein. Halston came from the Middle West and designed dresses for Bergdorf Goodman until he opened his own company. In 1973 he sold the husiness to Norton Simon Inc. and devoted himself to designing for five divisions and 20 licensees that include makers of rainwear, furs, pantybose, luggage, perfumes, men's fragrances and swimsuits.

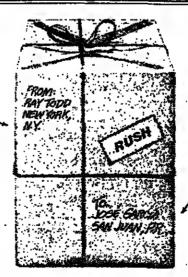

Bill Blass, while still work-ing for Maurice Rentner, a manufacturer of women's coats and suits, succeeded in convincing other manufacturers to make his designs. Soon he was including children's apparel, bathing stits and men's clothes, sheets, men's tolletries, shoes, ties and hankerchlefs.

What $100.000 buys...

"Not much at today's advertising prices," is the usual word. But look below and see just how far $100,000 invested in TIME can take you.

Each of these TIME availabilities offers a low outof-pocket page cost. Even better, each zeros in on a particular market, enabling you to invest your dollars without waste.

If you happen not to see exactly what the doctor ordered here, no problem. Within TIME's peerless array of advertising editions there's bound to be a combination that suits your budget as nicely as it matches your market. Just ask.

A nice bonus, whether you're a million-dollar advertiser or somebody spending $170 for a half-column in Indianapolis, the editorial environment is still TIME, The Weekly Newsmagazine.

4 Pages in TIME Big-Time Circulation: 2,700,000

Cost: $92,020

We call it that because it goes to the Big-time, 30 of the most important markets in the U.S.-places that account for the lion's share of sales for most products. TIME Big-time is priced near the small news magazines, but its circulation in these crucial markets is a million higher than any of theirs.

6 Pages in TIME B Circulation: 1,550,000

Cost: $104,520

This business man's edition of TIME circulates to more business people nationally than the Wall Street Journal or the traditional business magazines. And with a cpm that's $2.45 better than the next best, TIME B is an outstandingly efficient way to get intensive coverage at all levels of the business community.

Jets Open Drills and Holtz Opens Up Nastase

HEMPSTEAD, L. I., July 11 - That down-home Tom Sawyer image Lou Holtz projected during the offseason vanished today as he took the practice field for the first time as coach of the New York Jets.

After a broken play during an offensive drill, he tossed his metal clipboard 20 yards down the right sidelioe. "Hold it! Hold it!" he bellowed as 22 young, strong men stopped in their tracks, their helmets virtually quivering.

"No! no!" he screamed as he walked over to the boh-bled football and kicked it downfield.

Later, quietly sucking on his pipe, he said in a syrupy Southern accent "Did I do it for effect? No, sir. I never do anything for effect."

Toward the end of the workout, when he demanded that the offense run through "two perfect plays," he called back a play because "the left side of the huddle was un-even." He took his clipboard and sailed it 30 yards downfield, a toss a Frisbee expert would have been oroud or. Bob Fry, the offensive line coach, picked up the board and made a gesture to give it back to Holtz, who walked past him, his eyes on the grass.

"What will happen when next birdies and one bogey for the MAMARONECK, N.Y., July 11 - It was not unexpected, but the margin of victory was overwhelming as Dick under 66. Siderowf and Howard Kaskel of Doral won the 40th Anderson Memorial four-ball golf tournament today. Siderowf, one of world's finest amateurs, and Kaskel, a steady player, beat Aldo Butera and John Par-sons of Ridgewood (Conn.) by a whopping 9-and-8 score in the scheduled 36-hole final.

Despite the high humidity and the 90-degree heat, Si-derowf, this year's British Amateur champion, and his partner, a real estate executive, gained the victory over the east course of Winged Foot, a par-71, 6,664-yard edge at the turn. This afternoon he holed an

The tournament, named for John G. Anderson of the bost club, was started in 1933. But this is the first time the names of Siderowf and Kaskel will go up on the perma-nent clubbouse trophy board. Doubts of United States supremacy in basketball began with the loss of the 1972 gold medal to the So-viet Union Controversy has spread about the American system, which does not follow that of other nations. They preserve the thinly dis-gulsed amateur standing of their athletes, who in reality are professionals.

International basketball has made tremendous strides to recent years so that the United States no longer can slip by on pure talent. While the United States scrounges to put together a team every four years from its top college talent, rivals grow stronger playing together for several years.

The system in which the United States selects a team two months before the Olympics and after a week of tryouts has drawn criticism. "I think the United States is in for a surpirse this time around, especially from Rus-sia and Yugoslavia," said Al McGuire, the Marquette coach, whose team played seven international games last season. "You just don't get 56 kids together and shoot the ball. It has to be a team effort—you have to play defense, pass the hall and set picks for the other

"I don't think Dean Smith has had ecough time to get them ready. Under our selection system, everything goes to the Jack Armstrong-type player, the self-centered type player. To win, you need players who complement each other. Indiana, the Knicks, a few years hack, the Boston Celtics and Marquette , have proven that."

.Richard Washington, -Robert Parish, Leoo Douglas, John Lucas, Ron Lee and Terry Furlow, all top choices in the National Baskethall

Association college draft, by-passed the Olympic trials. This disturbed many people, Red Auerbach, the general manager of the Celtics, among them. "Dean Smith has his work. cut out for him," said Auerbach at the Olympic trials. "This team is weak down the middle. This is supposed to be the American team. When you don't have Washingtoo, Parisb or Douglas, it's terrible. Iso't there any pride or loyalty anymore?" Al-though the Soviet Union is the favorite, and the United States opens against a strong Italian team Sunday, a legion of believers predict an American gold medal.

"We're going to win it," said Lou Carnesecca, the St.

John's coach. "Sure, international basketball has made great strides, but it still hasn't learned to cope with our multiple and pressure de-fenses. We will be too quick and too fast for them. # Taiwan Loses Fight, Likely to Quit Games

MONTREAL, July 11-Idealism gave way to political reality tonight when Lord Killanin of Ireland conceded he had "lost the battle" over Taiwanese participatioo in the Olympic Games.

At an emotional news conference, the president of the linternational Olympic Com-mittee bitterly criticized the aCnadian Government for refusing to allow Taiwan's athletes into the country unless they agreed not to compete as representatives of the Republic of China. However, he said his executive board had "no other alternative" but to recommend that the Games go on with or without Taiwan's presence,

"The Canadian Government made it clear this was a political decision from which it could not with-draw," Killanio said. "But it is unfortunate they allowed

The announcement came after a second straight day of marathoo discussions by the LO.C.'s nine-member executive voard at the Queen Elizabeth Hotel. Attempts at a compromise failed when leaders of the Taiwanese delegation rejected a suggestion that it march with an Olympic flag under an 1.0.C. plaque. The Taiwanese said it would "not be law-ful" for them to compete as Taiwan inasmuch as they are recognized by the I.O.C. as the Republic of China.

"There is no possibility we will take part in these Games under those condi-tions," said Lawrence S. Ting, chief of the Taiwanese delegation. "But we will walt to see what the foll session of the I.O.C. says."

On Tuesday, the unani-mous recommendation of the

I.O.C.'s executive board will be presented to the group's 78-member board of directors. A majority vote would he needed to override the proposal and that orospect proposal and that orospect appears highly unlikely.

Killanin said it would not he fair to the other athletes or the City of Montreal to withdraw Olympic sanction from the Cames at this late date. But he said ethletes date. But be said athletes would be warned in the future they might run risk of a caocellation "if this ever happens again."

Sharply critical of lanin called the ban on Taiwan an "extremely danger-ous" precedent that marked the first time in Olympic history athletes have been prevented from entering a country to compete. "The ouestlen of flags and anthems is not the husiness of the LO.C. or any govern-ment," the white-haired frish sportsman said. "I thiok the world is fed up with politicians interfering in sports." He added he would keep on fighting for Olympic ideals, despite the current setback. "I don't mind getting a black-eye or even getting

Figueroa Takes 10th

By PAUL L MONTGOMERY The Yankees ended the first half of their season vesterday with the same oote of success that has punctuated it so far—a 5-0 victory over the Chicago White Sox at Yankee Stadium.

A crowd of 53,160, the largest since the rebuilt stadium was opened in April, saw the leaders in the American League East bury the friendly White Sox on a three-hitter by Ed Figueroa for the right-hander's 10th victory of the year.

Despite the big lead over their division rivals, Manager Billy Martin declined to look comfortable. "I've never been complacent all my life, I'm not going to start now," he said. "If we had 10 games left oo the schedule instead of 81, I might get a little

ne first of these was Eddie Collins, a patron saint of 'y's since young Tom enrolled in Episcopal vacademy York Collins, who had gone from Episcopal to the Yawkey bought the Red Sox from Bob Quinn for some-thing like $350,000 his first move was to make the old second haseman his vice president and general manager.

Collins charged headlong into the market place. He gave the St. Louis Browns $50,000 for Rick Ferrell, a brilliant catcher, and Lloyd Brown, left-handed pitcher. This, remember, was at the depths of the Great Depression when $50,000 was the equivalent of at least $500,000 today. For $100,000, Collins got George Pipgras, pitcher, and Bill Werber, infielder, from the Yankees. He was just heginning.

Eddie Collins had been a coach with the great Philadelphia Athletics of 1929-30-31. First he gave Connie Mack $125,000 for Lefty Grove, Rube Walberg and Max Bisbop: then $150,000 for Jimmy Foxx and Footsie Marcum; later $75,000 for Doc Cramer and Boob McNair. Meanwhile he picked up Rick Ferrell's pitching brother, Wes, and Dick Porter, an outfielder, from the Indians. Yawkey's money got Lyn Lary, an infielder, from the Yankees and the left-handed pitcher, Fritz Ostermueller, from the Cardinals.

Griff's Family Ties

By oow Collins bad speot well over half a million dollars, meaning $5 million or more in today's currency. Fans in Philadelphia and Cleveland grumbled a little when their favorites were sold but there wasn't a murmur out of the Commissioner or the other owners. They considered baseball lucky to bave a spender of Yawkey's stripe in

At the end of the 1934 season Collins brought off his masterpiece. He called upon Clark Griffith, who in all his years with the Washington Senators had boasted, "I never sold a player for cash." When Griff got around to it, he didn't self a mere player. He sold his manager and sonin-law. For $250,000 and Lyn Lary, the Red Sox got Joe Cronin, the shortstop who had married Mildred Robertson, Griff's niece and adopted daughter.

Clark Griffith's adopted son, Calvin, cried murder most foul this summer when Charley Finley sold Vida Blue, Joe Rudi and Rollie Fingers for $3.5 million. If Calvin's sense of history seems faulty, remember he was only 22 when Uncle Clark sold his aon-in-law. Yet all that money never produced a pennant. When the Sox won in 1946, in 1967 and in 1975, their key players were nomegrown ballplayers.

Tom Yawkey enjoyed fraternizing with his players, and perhaps this trait can be traced back to his boybood when his foster father owned the Tigers. The team was on a losing streak, and after one especially galling defeat Bill Yawkey loaded the whole squad into a bus that took them to the nearest saloon. On the boss's order, the players lined up at the bar and knocked one back. They proceeded to another saloon and another and another and at long last to a Turkish bath where attendants hauled them inside, gave then the works and tucked them to sleep. Next day at noon the bus returned them to the park.

Star Filly Is Injured At Aqueduct

By MICHAEL STRAUSS Richard E. Bailey's Dearly Precious, the 2-year-old filly champion last year, may never race again.

Dr. Manuel E. Gilman, the track veterinarian, in an on-the-spot check described Dearly Precious's ailment as a bowed tendon of the left front leg just helow the ankle. He said that, barring further complications x-rays might reveal, the illy could return to the races after a suitable convalesence period. Bailey, an advertising man from Colt's Neck, N. J., was so shaken up by the incident that he left the winner's circle weeping after accepting the trophy from Telly Savalas, the television star.

"This filly has been a great one and I've held her in great affection," Bailey said. "As far as I'm concerned-right now I'll never let her race

again. I don't like to see her Dearly Precious, the $2.80for-$2 favorite, appeared in no difficulty as she crossed the finish line 21/2 lengths in front of Fly-Mac Stable's Do Shah'a Sireo, a 9-1 shot. She was clocked in the fast time of 1:09 1/5 for the six furlongs.

"I think something happened to thot leg about 70 yards before the finish," said Maple, "I think maybe she took a bad step. By the time we reached the wire, she was a little gimpy."

Yesterday's appearance was the first for Dearly Precious in five weeks. Early top of the eighth, Seaver looked like the pitcher of record with a 8-6 lead in his unusual relief role.

Braves SetBack Mets, 9-8

"I didn't chalk it up in my. book though," Seaver said, "even though I've never won a game that way. I had relieved a few times years ago, once when Matlack first came up [1971] and I lost that game for him and once, I remember, in Philadelphia in '68. "But throwing 10 pitches today won't hurt me for the All-Star break."

Apodaça Is Loser

Bob Apodaca pitched the eighth for New York and ended up with the loss, his fifth, because of a lead-off double by the pincb-hitting Dave May, a walk to Jerry Royster and an error by Bud Harrelson at short on a double-play bail.

Willie Mootanez, given a chance to come up with the bases loaded and two out. drove in the three runs with a double to right-center field to win the game, Montanez battled in six runs for the day with two singles and the clutch double.

Following the weddings and the game were five pro wrestling matches, which made the stadium the scene of wedlocks and headlocks. Manager Joe Frazier must have felt like wrestling somebody io the Braves' five-run inning when a ball hit by Tom Paciorek appeared to bounce into the stands for a ground-rule double, Had that been the case, Jim Wynn, who had been on first, would have been stranded at third.

Bristol Wins Debate But Manager Dave Bristol of the Braves argued with Umpire Dutch Rennert, won the debate, and Wynn was waved home. It proved the run that beat the Mets, and Frazier was left in a rage.

"The umpire called it fan interruption," Frazier said, saying a fan had touched the ball before it went into the stands. Dave Kingman, [the Met rightfielder] said no one had touched it, and that was the first call. Then Bristol comes out and they change it. "Why do you think they waited until then. Even if a fan touched it, doesn't that give the bome club an advantage? They'll have all the fans grabbing balls if it gives their team an extra base.

Phils Sweep Padres, 3-0; Kaat's First N.L. Shuton

After 17 seasons of pitching in the major leagues, Jim Kaat has learned to do his work quickly. The 37-yearold left-hander who is spending his first seasoo in the National League, oeeded just 89 pitches yesterday as bis Phillies topped the San Diego Padres, 3-0, at Philladelphia.

In scoring his 244th victory and 29th sbutout, Kaat scattered nine hits and benefitted from three double plays. The game took only l bour 36 minutes, the shortest in the National League this season.

"My game plan is work-g," said Kaat after posting," said Kaat after post-ing his first National League sbutout. "My plan is to work fast, get ahead of the hitters and get them out." He ap-preciate the defense that produced the three double plays.

"I've played on some good defensive teams," said Kaat, who pitched for Washington, Minnesota and Chicago in the American League. "But this is by far the best."

Kaat's ninth victory in 12 decisions enabled the Phillies to maintain ther 10-game lead over the Pittsburgh Pirates in the Eastern Division. The victory completed a sweep for the Phillies, who have the best record and the largest lead in the major leagues. NATIONAL LEAGUE

Equileo Wins Stature Along With Rich Trot

day night's $200,000 Roosevelt International Trot, was the best-kept secret in the eight-horse field.

Equileo was considered the "other" French horse bebind Bellino II, who was touted as a "sure thing," At the same time, fans were woodering if Savior, one of the two United States entries and the 1975 Interoational winner, would regain his form. But Equileo, wbo had started from the No. 5 post and raced oo the outside for the entire 11/4mile distance, beat Bellino by a half-leogth. Savior was Among the few supporters for the 6-year-old Equileo was Jean Riaud. In a televisioo interview taped before the race, Riaud, who had driven Jamin, the winner of the first International in 1959, said if be was a betting man, which be was not, he could not have resisted the 8 to 1 morning line on Equileo. Equileo went off at 19-1 and returned $40.60 for $2 in his first victory over Bellino II, the horse he had chased

Bellino II, driven by Jean-Rene Gougeon, who had won three previous Internationals, had started from the No. 2 post, took the lead before the halfway mark and trotted in front uotil caught by

"Bellino can't trot turns," sald Delvin Miller, the driver of Meadow Bright, the United States entry who finished third. "He slowed up on the turn. My mare could have won the race if she could have gotten out." But Meadow Bright, trotting behind Bellino II. could not get outside because Snegem Flight, the Canadian borse, was there. This was the second time Bellino II, a giant 9-year-old atallion, had fimshed second in the International. Last year, when beaten by Savoir, he also had problems with the turns. Bernard Froger, the 34-year-old driver of Equileo, racing in the United States for the first time, was visibly nervous before the race, but once it started he showed the coolness he was noted for in France.

"I knew I was going to win at the head of the stretch," he said. "I went to the whip, but my horse had a lot left at the finish." The winning time was 2:33 3/5. Equileo was trained for the race three months on the private half-mile track of Pierre Allaire, his part-owner. He and Bellino II will meet again Saturday night at Roosevelt Raceway in the 11/4-mile $50,000 Challenge Cup. The race will also include Snegem Flight, Meadow Bright, Johnny Jampup, Dream of Glory, Keystooe Pioneer and Kash Minbar.

SPRINGFIELD, Pa., July 11 Little Sandra Palmer, the defending United States Women's Open golf cham-pion, sank a crucial putt on each of the last two holes today and tied JoAnne Carner for first place after 72 holes of the 31st Open. The that Canada's refusal to let two will play off for the title tomorrow. Miss Palmer's putt at 17 was about 22 feet for a birdie 4. The one that forced the playoff was a nine-foot downhill putt at the 18th for a par 5. The ball went right into the middle of the cap while Mrs. Carner, the 1971 champion, stood a few feet away watching from the fringe of the green. Miss Palmer and Mrs.

The United States Golf tinued to arrive at Olympic Association, which conducts the Open, requires an 18-hole playoff for all its major medal-pley championships.

This will be the fifth playoff and the first sloce 1964 when Mickey Wright beat Ruth Jesseo, 70-72, at Chula Vista in California.

Vista in California.

The U.S.G.A. was rather lucky to get the fourth round in today because of an early morning storm that dropped one inch of water on Rolling Stone in a four-hour period But the association officials decided to break precedent and seot the lower half of the field of 50 golfers off from the 10th tee and the upper half from the first tee. Normally, the U.S.G.A. does not do this in any of its tour-

Miss Palmer went off the first tee leading Mrs. Carner by two strokes but lost that lead in a hurry. Then she set-tled a bit and finished with 40, 35-75 for the 292. Mrs. Carner, who parred each of the first nioe boles, had bogey trouble on the back nine and sbot 35, 37-73, or two over par of 35, 36-71 on this course set at about 6 100 this course set at about 6,100 yards.

Jane Blalock, who got close enough to tie for the lead as she teed up on the 16th hole, took a double bogey 5 at 16 when she landed in a bunker. She had a 76 for 296 and third-place money of $3,454. Miss Blalock bas never won the Open.

The Long Hitter

Miss Palmer, who stands only 5 feet 1 incb and weighed 117 pounds after standing in the rain, is going agaiost one of the longest-hitting women in golf history. Mrs. Carner, considerably bigger than Miss Palmer, will be sbooting for a $9,000 first prize. Second place is worth $5,500.

Miss Palmer, 35 years old, and Mrs. Carner, 37, will meet at 1:30 P.M. tomorrow. They are a couple of tested campaigners, who met in a sudden-death playoff in St. Petersburg last February. Mrs. Carner won that on the fourth hole for one of her three tour victories this sea-

Bill Jankunis practicing the high jump at U.S. camp in Plattsburgh, N.Y., Pris

By FRANK LITSKY

PLATTSBURGH, N.Y., July The members of the United States Olympic men's track team were assembled in a dining room at their train-ing base, the State University of New York campus. One by one, they stood and introduced themselves.

Bill Jankunis of Staten Island rose and said:
"Bill Jankunis, high jump, New York Athletic Clnh." "We can't bear you," said a voice from the front of the room. "Say it again."
"O.K.," said Jankunis. "Bill

Jankunis, an unknown." Everybody laughed, even the athletes who had bardly heard of Jankunis until the United States Olympic trials onited States Olympic trials at Eugene, Ore., as well as those who were astonished at his light training program.

Now everyone has heard of him because he won the trials by jumping 7 feet 5¾ inches, a height exceeded by only three men in history

Dwight Stones and Pat Matzdorf of the United States and Ni Chi-chin of China. Stones, who attends Long Beach State, is the world rec-ord-bolder at 7-7 and the strong Olympic favorite in Montreal He finished second to Jankunis and led the cheering for his conqueror. "He bas a lot more to go," said Stones. Jankunis agreed.

"After the trials," he said, "I called home. My mother asked me bow I felt. I said, 'I still haven't come down yet." And I'm still not down, I'm smiling to myself. People think I'm crazy."
Some thought they were

Jankunis, pronounced Jan-KOO-nis, is 20 years old, 6 feet 3 inches, with angular body, loog face and sharp features. He talks easily and seems fully relaxed, oblivious to the pressures of big-time competition. His training regimen is one of a kind. He runs three days a week, about six miles on the Staten Island beach near his bome in Midland Beach. He lifts weights three days a week (125 pounds jump squat, 350 squat, 450 leg press). He jumps in workouts only once every two weeks, under the guidance of Bill Welsb, who coached hun to Public Schools Athletic League bigh jump and hurdles championships at New Dorp High School. Most jumpers jump at least twice a week.

"Tve got to do what's right for me," said Jankunis, "I can't get myself excited for workouts. When I do jump, I do 6-6 and try to get my stride pattern down. "I think it's insane to jump for height in workouts. In my first year at Colorado I jumped twice a week, I found 1 was repeating mistakes, 1 got rid of one thing and found

After the Olympians' victory over a team of pros last week in Providence, R.I., Doug Collins, the Philadelphia 76er guard and a mem-ber of the 1972 Olympic team, said he believes the United States would win the gold medal.

Smith said that there should be no favorite, and that the United States, as an underdog, had its pros and "I know our rivals have salaried players," he said. "Bobby Morse, who plays in Italy, bas told me some of the players on his team are earning more than $80,000 a year. Some of those players are on the Italian Olympic team. They are being paid to play basketball by public relations companies.

This is not the American way. We should stop worrying about something out of our control. Who says we would have had a better team with Parish and Douglas? They played in International Cup competition when we lost twice to Italy and ooce to Yugoslavia. The best suggestion I could offer is that the Olympic coach se-lect the team. He gets the criticism, anyway, so why not let him pick the team?" Twelve teams compete in

Olympic basketball. United States is in Group B with Yugoslavia, Czechoslovakia, Italy, Puerto Rico and Egypt. Canada, the Soviet Union, Mexico, Cuba, Japan and Australia are in Group A. The group winners meet for the gold medal. The United States, the Soviet Union, Yugoslavia and

Italy figure to battle for the gold and silver medals and Canada is given a chance for the bronze. The American strength is at the forwards and in the backcourt. The guards, led by Phil Ford of North Carolina and Quinn Buckner of Indiana, are fast. The forwards, like Scott May of Indiana and Adrian Dantley of Notre Dame, provide muscle and mohility.

Mitch Kupchak and Tom LaGarde, both 6-10, who played for North Carolina last season, are not the most dominating big men, but were the best centers avail-

In May, Dantley, Ernie Grunfeld of Tennessee, Keooy Carr of North Carolina State and Nate Armstrong of Duke, the United States has some of the best scorers. Each averaged better than 23 points a game.

"There isn't a man here who can't play offense," said Smith, "but that isn't what's going to win the gold medal for us. It's the defense, and actually I'm shocked how well a group of all-stars have meshed and are playing to-gether. In one exhibition gether. In one exhibition game, Dantley didn't even take a shot."

The Soviet Union has another 7-foot teen ager, Vladimir Zhiglii, and 6-8 Rashid Abelyanov. The most recognizable Russian is 6-8 Alexander Belov, who scored the winning basket in the disputed 51-50 victory that snapped the United States 63-game Olympic winning 63-game Olympic winning

Also back are Ivan Edeshko, who threw the floorlength pass that set up Belov's basket; Sergei Belov, Zharmukhamedov and Mikhail Korkia, Coran Slavnik is the best Yugoslav guard. Guthridge

Immediately following this presentation is a 21-minute adaptation of "Next Dnor," a short story by Kurt Vonncgut Jr. As a project of the New Television Workshop at Boston's WGBH-TV, "Next Door" was produced, di-rected, adapted and edited by Andrew Silver.

A young married couple are going to see a "dirly movie," leaving their son without a baby sitter ("This is a story about a radio. Imagine you are 8 years old ..."). By himself, the boy listen to a radio disk jockey -All Night Sam, Your Melody Man-and the nextdoor quarreling of a middleaged couple. Len and Charlotte, his determined lover ("Ycs, you do have problems, and I'm going to help you".

Nothing much happens, and everything happens. The boy's world is crammed with the typical Vonnegut mixture of humor and terror, iono-cence and viciousness, the ordinary and the extraordinary. The modest production manages to capture that fascinating mix to a remarkable degree.
